SHORT INTRODUCTION

The materials collected in this brochure should not have existed in a democratically consolidated state, member of the European Union.

In the context of Romania's joining the European Union, the justice system of the former communist state seems to have changed and to be aligned with those of the democratic states of Western Europe. On the one hand, many young magistrates have entered into the judiciary system, the National Anticorruption Directorate has consistently achieved good results, and hundreds of corrupt politicians and magistrates have already been finally convicted. On the other hand, the mechanism for cooperation and verification of Romania's progress in achieving specific benchmarks in the field of judiciary reform and the fight against corruption has not been lifted even after 10 years from the EU accession, and the assault against those who struggle with the scourge of corruption is in full action.

Concerning Romania, the latest Report of the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism (2017)<sup>1</sup> expressly recommends, "for further improvement of transparency and predictability of the legislative process, as well as for strengthening the internal guarantees of irreversibility", "the Romanian Government and Parliament (...) should ensure full transparency and take into due account of consultations with relevant authorities and interested parties in decision-making and legislative work related to the Criminal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code, anti-corruption laws, (incompatibilities, conflicts of interest, illicit wealth), the laws of justice (relating to the organization of the justice system), as well as the Civil Code and the Civil Procedure Code."

Although in a society still grinded by corruption, it seems necessary to increase the institutional capacity to fight it, including the recovery of damages, which discourages this phenomenon, thus the Romanian politicians proposed in January 2017 to pardon or reduce penalties for crimes, including for corruption.<sup>2</sup> More than 600,000 citizens went out on the streets, so the draft of the emergency ordinance in this matter, adopted in the cold winter night, was abandoned for the moment.<sup>3</sup>

On August 23rd, 2017, by a PowerPoint document presented at a press conference, the Minister of Justice proposed a new set of amendments to the "laws of justice" (Law 303/2004, Law 304/2004 and Law no. 317/2004), without impact studies and prior consultation on key legislative issues, to ensure decisional transparency regarding the magistrates (judges and prosecutors) and the civil society.

The draft was communicated to the Superior Council of Magistracy, and in its meeting of September 28th 2017 the Plenum issued a negative opinion on the whole project, taking into account the votes expressed in numerous general assemblies of the judges and prosecutors from the courts and prosecutor's offices, where they were rejected, in overwhelming proportion, among other things, all substantive changes to the draft law, reorganization of the Judicial Inspection as a structure with legal entity within the Ministry of Justice, the amendments of the decisions for all the nominations at the top of the judiciary system (General Prosecutor of the Public Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ, first deputy and assistant, the chief prosecutor of the NAD, his deputies, the chief prosecutors of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the HCCJ and the NAD, as well as the chief prosecutor of DIICOT and his deputies), the proposed amendments regarding the magistrates' liability regime, the changes of the recruitment system of the magistrates - the age limit (30 years) for admission to the National Institute of Magistracy and the required seniority in another legal profession of at least 5 years, the amendments regarding the exams for promotion in executive positions, maintaining the court budget at the Ministry of Justice, as well as the establishment within the Public Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ of a specialized directorate with exclusive competence to carry out criminal prosecution for the offences committed by judges and prosecutors, regardless of their nature and gravity.

In October 2017, approximately 4,000 Romanian judges and prosecutors, more than half of their total, appropriated the Memorandum to withdraw the draft amendment to the "laws of justice",<sup>4</sup> addressed to the Romanian Government following the refusal of taking into account the negative opinion on the whole project issued by the Superior Council of Magistracy. The supporters of the Memorandum believe that these changes promoted by the Minister of Justice flagrantly violate the Co-operation and Verification Mechanism, its constant reports and the foundations of a natural magistracy in a democratic state. Consequently, the undeniable will of the majority of magistrates, which, according to the supporters of the Memorandum, the Romanian Government (to which the Minister of Justice belongs) cannot disregard in a Member State of the European Union, converges in the sense of removing any doubt about the diversion of this project detrimental for magistracy, requiring its immediate withdrawal, the Ministry of Justice failing to develop an effective, concrete dialogue with the magistrates, the Superior Council of Magistracy, the professional associations of judges and prosecutors, to improve the legislative framework, after carrying out the necessary impact studies and after presenting serious and credible grounds regarding the proposed changes, in order to modernize the judicial system, in accordance with the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism.

The gesture of the approximately four thousand judges and prosecutors seems to be a most unusual one. As a rule, magistrates are silent, magistrates express themselves more in their interior self and of course through the decisions or documents they issue, and less in the agora. It is a genuine public statement of the independence of the judiciary system, but not a change of attitude, while the rejection of the laws of justice was a continuous coordinate. Also, for the first time in the post-communist period, civil society thanked the thousands of magistrates who supported the Memorandum, joining its conclusions.<sup>5</sup>

When democracy and fundamental freedoms are in jeopardy, the judge's duty to be a reserved becomes subsidiary to the indignation obligation.<sup>6</sup> Therefore, the judges' reactions, through their representatives or by the professional associations they have set up, are legitimate and expected.

Next years are difficult and the support of the European Commission in the field of the Mechanism for cooperation and monitoring of progress made by Romania created for achieving specific benchmarks in the field of the judicial reform and the fight against corruption will be essential.

The brochure contains the opinion of the Romanian Judges' Forum Association on the 10 main proposals for amending the "laws of justice", the negative opinion issued by the Superior Council of Magistracy by Decision no. 974 of September 28, 2017, the text of the Memorandum for the Rejection of the Amendments to the "Laws of Justice" (Law 303/2004, Law 304/2004 and Law 317/2004), appropriated by approximately 4,000 Romanian judges and prosecutors, and some reactions from the civil society.

We thank Mr. Cristian Mihăilescu for the cover of the brochure, as well as the magistrates involved.

ROMANIAN JUDGES' FORUM REGARDING THE MAIN 10 AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE ON THE LAWS REGARDING THE JUDICIARY

I. On the reorganization of the Judicial Inspection, as a legal personality structure within the Ministry of Justice

With reference to this amendment proposed by the Minister of Justice on the „laws of justice”, there has never been during prior talks, beginning with 2016, such an issue put forward concerning any modification of the statute of the Judicial Inspection. There is no reasonable explanation to proceed to such a modification, it is unknown why the current statute should be subject to change and what where the reasons underlying such an initiative.

The report issued by the Judicial Inspection for the year 2016<sup>7</sup> reveals the following data:

- there have been 6823 referrals (218 ex officio) lodged regarding the activity and the conduct of judges and prosecutors, out of which 4762 referrals regarding judges (177 ex officio) and 2061 referrals regarding prosecutors (41 ex officio);
  - solved at the end of preliminary verifications: 5751 closed for lack of probable cause of having committed any disciplinary offence (4030 – Inspection Service for Judges, 1721 – Inspection Service for Prosecutors);
    - closing resolutions challenged: 182 (114 - Inspection Service for Judges, 45 - Inspection Service for Prosecutors) out of which 157 rejected and 2 admitted (Inspection Service for Judges); the admission decisions have been appealed by the Judicial Inspection and are pending before the High Court of Cassation and Justice; the other challenges have not yet been solved;
    - solved at the end of the disciplinary action: 119 (1,65% of all the referrals), out of which 93 regarding judges and 26 regarding prosecutors;
      - 51 referrals admitted (0,71% of all the referrals), out of which 40 regarding judges and 11 regarding prosecutors, and 68 referrals rejected;
      - legal remedy against referral rejection resolutions: 3 challenges (percentage of challenges 4,41 %), all rejected (annulment index 0%);
  - the Judicial Inspection proceeded to disciplinary action for: 36 judges (37 disciplinary actions) for 60 disciplinary offences and 14 prosecutors (13 disciplinary actions) for 22 disciplinary offences; the most common disciplinary actions are those provided under letters t (21), h (14), a (11) and m (9) of art. 99 of Law no 303/2004 regarding the statute of judges and prosecutors;

– disciplinary actions solved by the Superior Council of Magistracy: 17 regarding judges for 23 offences (15 sanctioned and 8 rejected); 5 regarding prosecutors for 11 offences (5 sanctioned, 6 rejected);

– 12 disciplinary sanctions enforced to judges: warning - 4, reduction of gross monthly salary – 3, suspension – 3 and dismissal from magistracy – 2; – 4 disciplinary sanctions enforced to prosecutors: warning - 2, reduction of gross monthly salary – 2;

– professional deontology – 6 referrals regarding the possible infringement of the Code of deontology for judges and prosecutors (4 regarding judges, 2 regarding prosecutors) of which 2 ex officio;

– good reputation of active judges and prosecutors – two referrals (each regarding a judge), proposals of the Judicial Inspections have been confirmed by the Plenary of the SCM;

– defence of the independence of the judiciary: 26 referrals (4 regarding judges and 22 regarding prosecutors) of which 23 solved by SCM (23 admitted);

– defence of the professional reputation, independence and impartiality of magistrates – 36 requests (17 made by judges and 19 by prosecutors) of which 21 solved by SCM (16 admitted).

These data show that the Judicial inspection, in its current organization, delivers efficient results. Thus, the real reason why it would be necessary to change its statute is unknown.

Moreover, as in the case of the appointments of the heads of the prosecutor's offices, no MCV reports has brought any criticisms to this institution, in view of its statute as a structure within the Superior Council of Magistracy having legal personality, acting on the basis of the operational independence principle (art. 65 of Law no. 317/2004 regarding the Superior Council of Magistracy).

The reorganization of the Judicial Inspection within the Ministry of Justice, regardless of its legal formula (autonomous, under the authority etc.) will create, at least apparently, the impression of political subordination, which leads to the infringement of the principle of the separation and balance of powers within the framework of constitutional democracy.

Considering all the above arguments, there is no legal or factual basis for modifying the statute of the Judicial Inspection.

The assertion and the guarantee of the independence of judicial inspectors means excluding any influence from political factors, including from a minister of justice, member of a political government. Any malfunction of the present organization could be easily corrected instead of proceeding to the proposed institutional transfer.

II. Regarding the material liability of the magistrates

Regarding the Justice Minister's proposal of the review of justice laws even though this is a very common subject, in fact, it requires an extremely technical analysis.

1. In view of the European legal framework

The Consultative Council of European Judges, through the 55th par. of the third Notice recommends as a general principle that the judges must be exempted of any liability concerning the direct complaints against them regarding the goodwill exercise of their function. The legal errors, related to assessing and law enforcement, or to evidence assessment, either related to the jurisdiction or to the procedure, must be corrected by way of appeal; other judicial errors which cannot be amended in that manner (including the excessive delay) must lead at the most to a claim against the State of an unhappy litigator.

European Charter on the Statute for Judges, in the 5.2th alignment, emphasizes the need to restrain the civil liability of the judges to the state's indemnification for „gross and inexcusable negligence” using legal procedures and having the prior agreement of an independent authority based on a pertinent legal representation (such as the represented one at the 43th article of The Opinion of CCJE No 1/2001). Furthermore, with regard to the material liability of the judge, the Charter states that the State should provide the compensations for illegal damages incurred following a decision of the judge or due to the way of exercising his office. Therefore, the State is the constant guarantor to the victim for damage compensation.

By stating that, this State guarantee shall be applied to the damages incurred in a illegitimate way following a decision of the judge or due to the way of exercising his office, the Charter does not necessarily refer to the wrong nature of the decision or the judge's behaviour, but rather insists on the damages arising thereof or illegally incurred. This is perfectly compatible with the liability that doesn't rely to the judge's error but based on the unusual, special and serious character of the damage that arises from his decision or from his behaviour. The meaning of this emerges from a particular consideration to the fact that the judicial independence of the judge should not be vitiated by a civil liability regime.

In fact, the Charter states that, when the damage that the State has to ensure is the result of a gross and inexcusable ignorance of the rules governing the judge's activity, the Statute can provide the State the possibility to require the beneficiary judge to reimburse the compensation for the reimbursement, by a jurisdictional action, within the limits of the Statute.

The need for a gross and inexcusable error, the jurisdictional nature of the repayment action must provide significant guarantees to avoid an eventual deviation of the procedure. (The European Charter on the Statute for Judges).

Without affecting the disciplinary procedures or any right of appeal or State compensation, according to the national law, the judges should have personal immunity towards civil suits intended to obtain material damages for inappropriate acts or omissions made in the performance of their judicial function. (Basic Principles on the Independence of the Judiciary, adopted by The Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders held at Milan, from 26 august to 6 September 1985 and endorsed by General Assembly resolutions 40/32 of 29 November 1985 and 40/146 of 13 December 1985).

2. European standards

Consultative Council of European Judges (CCJE) – Opinion no. 18 (2015)
“The position of the Judiciary and its relation with the other powers of state in a modern democracy”

The Judiciary, just as the other two powers of state, provides a public service. It is self-evident that it has to be held responsible to the society it serves. The judicial authority needs to be exercised in the interest of the rule of law and of those seeking justice. Accordingly, the Judiciary is confronted with the task of proving the other powers of state and society in general the utility in whose service it has dedicated its competencies, its authority and its independence. The beneficiaries of justice are increasingly demanding a more efficient Judiciary. A better access to justice is regarded as increasingly important. The efficacy and the accessibility are elements that demonstrate the “responsibility”. The CCJE admitted the existence of these trends on other occasions as well. When it notes that the judiciaries in democratic systems have to produce justice of the highest quality and with adequate responsibility, the CCJE is emphasizing an aspect of the judicial “responsibility” that needs to be provided to society in general. In recent years, the public services have evolved to become more open and have accepted the fact that they need to provide the public that they serve with explanations that are more thorough. Consequently, the concept of responsibility towards the public has become increasingly important in the overall setting of the public activities. A public agency will be seen as “responsible” if it provides explanations for its actions and, equally important, if it assumes responsibility for them.

This accountability is as vital for the Judiciary as it is for the other powers of state because the Judiciary, just as the others, has public service as its main objective. Additionally, if a careful balance is maintained, the two principles, of judicial independence and of accountability, are not irreconcilably opposite. In the judicial sense, “accountable” needs to be read as being held to account for one’s actions, in other words to indicate the reasons and provide explanations for the decisions and the conduct in relation to the cases the judges are called to adjudicate. “Accountable” does not mean that the Judiciary is responsible or subordinated to another power of state because this would contravene its very constitutional role of being an independent body, whose function is to adjudicate disputes in a way that is impartial and in accordance with the law. If the Judiciary were “responsible” to another power of state, as in respond or be subordinated to it, it would follow that in those situations in which the other powers of state are involved, the Judiciary would not be able to fulfil its abovementioned constitutional role.

The accountability of individual judges and the Judiciary, as a whole, is twofold. First, they are responsible to the private individuals that are engaged in the particular judicial proceedings. Second, they are responsible to the other powers of state and, through them, to society in general.

There are multiple forms of accountability. First, the judges are accountable for their rulings through the appealing procedure (“judicial accountability”). Second, the judges have the duty to act transparently. By organizing public hearings and by providing reasoning in the publicly available (save for exceptional circumstances) rulings, each judge provides the justice seekers with arguments for their actions and decisions. At the same time, the judge provides justifications for his or her actions to the other powers of state and the society in general. This type of accountability can be described as “explanatory accountability”. Third, if a judge acts improperly, (s)he will be held liable in a more rigorous way, for instance by being subject to disciplinary procedures and, as the case may be, to criminal prosecution. This is called “punitive accountability”.

As far as civil, criminal and disciplinary liabilities are concerned (what was previously called “punitive accountability”), the CCJE stresses that the main remedy for the judicial errors that do not implicate bad faith has to be the appealing procedure. At the same time, in order to protect the independence of justice against improper influences, a great deal of attention has to be paid when setting up a framework for the criminal, civil and disciplinary liability of judges. The tasks of interpreting the law, weighing the evidence and finding the facts that are undertaken by a judge in ruling on the cases before him or her should not give rise to his/her civil or disciplinary liability, save for situations when his/her bad faith, malice or gross negligence have been proven. In addition, when the state is ordered to pay damages to a party due to the faulty administration of justice, it is the state, and not the party, who holds the power to determine, through judicial action, the civil liability of a judge.

European Commission for Democracy through Law (Venice Commission). Republic of Moldova Amicus Curiae Brief for the Constitutional Court on the right of recourse by the state against judges (Article 27 of the Law on Government Agent no. 151 of 30 July 2015) adopted by the Venice Commission at the 107th Plenary Session (Venice, 10-11 June 2016).

As far as the procedure of holding judges liable, initiated because of a decision by the Court, keeping up with the Court’s jurisprudence can prove to be a difficult task. The Court has repeatedly held that the Convention is a living instrument that has to be read in light of the latest developments in society. The way in which the Court makes use of the living instrument doctrine makes it difficult for domestic courts to anticipate the rulings that are to be rendered in its pending cases. The contested legal issue may be a novel one or specific to a certain jurisdiction so that the existing jurisprudence of the Court does not provide clear guidance for interpretation by the national judge. The Court’s jurisprudence can be more or less rooted or evolving, depending on the legal issue and the affected rights.

The core issue here is the way in which requests for a more extensive accountability of the Judiciary are dealt with, while safeguarding the fundamental principle of the independence of judges.

Article 66 of the Recommendation CM/Rec(2010)12 weighs up the independence of a judge and his/her accountability as follows: “The interpretation of the law, assessment of facts or weighing of evidence carried out by judges to determine cases should not give rise to civil or disciplinary liability, except in cases of malice and gross negligence.”

Statement of Principles of the Independence of the Judiciary by the Conference of Chief Justices of Central and Eastern Europe, Brijuni, Croatia, 14 October 2015

Without prejudice to any disciplinary procedure or to any right of appeal or to compensation from the State in accordance with national law, judges should enjoy personal immunity from civil suits and immunity from paying indemnification, based on allegations of improper acts or omissions in the exercise of their judicial functions. No judge should be subjected to criminal proceedings for criminal conduct without the withdrawal or waiver of the judge's immunity. However, because no judge is above the law, whenever a judge engages in criminal conduct, the waiver of his immunity should be forthcoming.

ENCJ Report 2013-2014 “European and International Standards for Independence and Accountability of the Judiciary”

The independence of the Judiciary as a whole and that of individual judges lie at the heart of the rule of law. Without it, the Judiciary cannot fulfil its functions. However, independence does not stand on its own. It must be recognized that independence is directly linked to accountability. A Judiciary that claims independence but which refuses to be accountable to society will not enjoy the trust of society and will not achieve the independence for which it strives.

ENCJ working group Report on Liability 2007-2008

Generally, State responsibility mechanisms also exist to correct errors caused by “defective or abnormal functioning” of the justice service. Any deficiency that translates to the justice service being unable to fulfil its mission generally constitutes an error. By way of example, the main causes are unreasonable delays in handling procedures, serious negligence, denial of justice, judicial error, the duration of detention etc.

In certain countries, in such cases where civil errors can be proved against judges, those judges can be declared civilly responsible for the consequences of their decisions independently and outside of the framework of recourse actions. Civil responsibility is of the classic type. A civil error must be present in judgement or the exercise of professional functions and result in damages.

The issue of civil responsibility poses the question of insurance for judges who, although independent in exercising their functions, remain an agent of the State, and thus of its guarantee. Since 1988, Spanish and Italian judges have been insured.

Nevertheless, in no case should civil responsibility be a way of destabilising judges responsible for a case or to either directly or indirectly attach their independence. Moreover, final jurisdictional decisions must retain the authority of the issue being judged after all means of appeal have been exhausted.

Notice no.3 of the Consultative Council of European Judges (CCJE)

With regards to the criminal liability, CCJE considered that judges have to be held accountable to the ordinary laws for crimes committed outside their legal function; criminal liability does not have to be applied to judges for errors unintentionally committed while performing their duties.

Regarding the civil accountability, CCJE considered that, with respect to the principle of independence, correcting judicial errors (both related to jurisdiction, substantial or procedural) has to be done through a corresponding system of appeals (with or without the Court permission, any correction in administrating justice – including for instance the excessive delays – are addressed exclusively to the state and it is not appropriate for a judge to be exposed - regarding their job assignments – to any personal accountability, even as damages owed to the state, unless it the error is intentional).

The Decision of the Court – September 30, 2003 Gerhard Köbler vs. Austria. The claim asking for a preliminary decision: Landesgericht fur Zivilrechtssachen Wien – Austria. Equality of treatment. Cause C-224/01.

"Any possible liability of a judge towards the victim is in conflict to the principle of the independence of judges".

3. Situation in the member states of European Union<sup>8</sup>

a) In the following states, the judge has (personal) immunity – the state is responsible for damages: United Kingdom, Scotland (with some exceptions for local judges – judges of peace, clerks of court and prosecutors).

b) In the following states, the judge is responsible only in the case of certain crimes: Latvia, Estonia

c) In the following states, the judge is responsible for decisions taken with bad faith or extreme negligence: Sweden, Germany, Croatia, Portugal (regress action is only undertaken with the notice from the Supreme Council of Magistrates), Italy, Serbia, France (state action against a magistrate that committed a personal mistake regarding the public service is optional and has never been used), Austria (except the Supreme Court Judges that have immunity, there is a professional insurance system)

d) In the following states, there is no magistrate liability ruled: Poland, Cyprus

e) In Hungary there is a complex form of liability

4. Conclusions

a. From the analysis upon the suggestions made by the Ministry of Justice, we can conclude the intention is to state one of the harshest regimes in Europe of juridical liability for magistrates, placing Romania only alongside Hungary from this perspective.

b. From the above stated, corroborated with the situation in other countries, first of all it needs to be stated that in the hypothesis of a harsher liability (because such liability already exists currently) there is the need for ruling a system of insurance for compulsory professional insurance, to lower the risk of affecting the independence of the magistrate in making the actual decisions in a case.

c. Third, we need to stress that in neither of the European states above mentioned, a recourse of the state against the magistrate is not compulsory (as the Ministry of Justice suggests) but rather is optional and depends on a series of circumstances of the case in concreto.

Also in the states where one such mechanism already exists, it has never been set in motion for the exact reason to actually enforce the independence of the magistrate.

d. Fourth, in order for such suggested mechanism not to undermine the principle of the independence of the magistrate, it is required to make a clear distinction and define the notions of extreme negligence or ill faith.

For this matter, the Supreme Court in Italy, in similar circumstances, stated that:

<sup>8</sup> See the file regarding the Romanian Judges' Forum, via judge Georgeta Ciungan, Focsani City Court, regarding to the civil liability of the magistrates, available at the web link <http://www.forumuljudecatorilor.ro/index.php/archives/2702> [last consulted October 17, 2017]

- Punishable negligence requires a quid pluris over simple negligence, it needs to be presented as inexplicable, with no relation to the particularities of the situation that would make such negligence understandable, without giving an explanation for the error of the judge (Cass. 6950/94)

- Extreme breaking of the law determined by punishable negligence does not exclude the processual laws, it is not a reason for liability that moment of performing the judicial duties of a judge regarding the identification of the content of the judicial law and the applicability of the law to a specific situation, even if the solution is debatable or poorly explained, because in this way it would come to a revising of the case that is not allowed for a interpretative or evaluative judgement, while a lack of deciding over a decisive issue being a source of liability. (Cass. 17259/02)

e. Fifth, it is imperative to state the fact that patrimonial liability that already exists is in correlation to the European standards, and bringing up the issue of the number or the amount of damages given as a result of convictions the Romanian state got at ECHR does not represent a justifying cause to aggravate the material liability of the magistrate, considering the fact that most of the times the judicial error is not the result of a single action/inaction, but rather the effect of a summing up of factors and incidents that involves also the duties of other powers of the state of law, legislative and executive power.

Thus, according to statistics (see the study Hotărârile CEDO în cauzele împotriva României. Analiză, consecințe, autorități potențial responsabile ECHR decisions of cases against Romania. Analysis, authorities with potential liability), until December 31st 2014, the legislative power is responsible in 76,82% of cases in which a conviction decision was given (769 cases), the judicial power in 57,84% (579 cases), Public Ministry for 19,48% (195 cases), and Constitutional Court for 0,39% of convictions (4 causes).

Not least, any legislative intervention with the possibility to create a suspicion of pressure on the judicial system must be heavily based, so that it removes any external interference factor as the objective being precepted as threatened see ENCJ 2013-2014 report on Independence and liability of the judicial system – European and international standards regarding Judicial Independence and Liability.

f. Sixth, we stress out the demagogic of this legislative proposal, considering the conditions that the equality between the three powers of the state is not respected. Thus, we notice the fact that in Romania there is no specific procedure for recovering the damages caused by ministries or members of the parliament that are convicted of a penal crime for crimes of corruption, some of them getting an early release without paying in full the damage caused directly to the State.

There is no equivalent system of liability for members of the other powers, members of the parliament having no liability whatsoever for the laws that got invalidated at ECHR (with the most notable example being the law for restitution of properties), and members of the government have no form of liability for activities that cause negative consequences, including at ECHR (most notable example being the situation in the penitentiary, where members of the government know the issue for years and the only initiative to solve that was issuing a law of pardon in the form of an Urgent Government Ordinance 13/2017).

The convictions at ECHR are not determined just by the conduct of some magistrates, but have a fundamental cause, in most cases, of poor laws, sometimes considered to be constitutional by the Constitutional Court (see for example, ECHR (see, for example, ECHR judgments in Sabou and Pîrcălab v. Romania, 28 September 2004, Dumitru Popescu (No 2) v. Romania, 26 April 2007, Marcu v. Romania, 26 October 2010, Bălteanu v. Romania, 16 July 2013). In such cases where the judges' decision was based on a national legal rule not in conformity with the European human rights law, maintained in the normative fund by a decision of the Constitutional Court, we ask whether the material liability should not be exclusive (or priority, at least) parliamentarians and judges of the Constitutional Court?

It is surprising that the initiative of the Minister of Justice, a former judge of the Constitutional Court, to deviate precisely from its constant jurisprudence on matters of magistrates' liability. For example, by Decision no. 633 of November 24, 2005, it was stated that "the rule that the injured party can bring an action only against the State and not against the magistrate who has committed the judicial error offers wider possibilities for the recovery of a possible right to compensation. Thus, making the recognition of the right to compensation exclusively for the judicial error results in the alleviation of the burden of proof, in the case where, alongside the judicial error, the bad faith or serious negligence of the magistrate should be proved, constitutional requirements for the accountability of the follow. Moreover, conferring the status of debtor of the wage-exclusion obligation exclusively to the state is likely to eliminate the creditor's risk of not being able to redeem his claim, being in principle the state is always solvable."

g. Finally, it must be said that the establishment of a regime of extremely harsh liability compared to the other European states (with the exception of Hungary), where the rule of law works, without any of the previously exposed guarantees (clarification of the notions of bad faith and serious negligence; professional liability insurance, etc.) will lead to the creation of a new type of magistrate, the fearful, timorous magistrate.

If the Romanian society needs a fearful magistrate who, when rendering decisions, would always reflect on the possibility of somebody regarding his/her conduct as being susceptible of patrimonial accountability, then the proposals put forward by the Minister of Justice accomplish just that: they bring in a constraining variable in the decisional process.

The argument that the measures are necessary for avoiding abuses is not valid. To the extent that there are abuses presently committed by magistrates, there are mechanisms in place through which they can be held liable, including criminally. There are well-known cases of magistrates that are subjected to various stages of criminal prosecution, as well as magistrates that are sanctioned disciplinarily, according to the Judicial Inspection Report that includes 2016.

It has to be noted that the proposed measures are susceptible of "supervising" the reasoning of the judge/magistrate, thus creating a risk that the measure would interfere and censure the very prerogative that is central for the judge/magistrate, namely to adjudicate, for the mere fact that one of the parties or the society is unhappy with a certain ruling (by way of example, see, inter alia, S v. Makwanyane – Constitutional Court of South Africa, in a famous decision regarding the unconstitutionality of the death penalty, rendered despite the fact that a large part of the population had voted for the penalty).

III. On the setting up within the SCCP of a specialized directorate with the exclusive competence to carry out criminal prosecution for the acts committed by judges and prosecutors

Regarding this proposal of the Minister of Justice to review the "laws of justice", first of all, such an idea has lacked explications about the necessity to implement such structure.

A special structure is justified only with a special problem. This measure implies that there is a problem of criminality within the magistrates, which requires special attention.

In addition, at a first glance, such a measure can be analysed from a constitutional perspective due to the fact that this type of special criminal investigation will apply only to the magistrates.

As a support for those presented, is the no.104/2009 Decision of Constitutional Court, which even though it was issued in a unrelated area with this discussion, the Decision was issued in work conflicts domain, it has confirmed the fact that there is no justification for a different treatment and procedure for magistrates.

There is no such type of measure for parliamentarians, nor for the members of the Government, neither for officials and nor for any other professional category.

There is no justification to undergo a special treatment for the magistrates. If the justification is that of the protection of magistrates, then such type of explanation is at least unbelievable and also likely to raise the suspicion that it actually hides something else.

It is not necessary to recall the fact that the SIPA was also established for the "protection" of the magistrates.

It should also be noted that in the present, within the National Anticorruption Directorate there is the "Anti-Corruption Justice Service", established by Order no. 10 of January 31, 2014, whose competence is limited to corruption offenses.

Due to the fact that such an entity exists, no arguments have been put forward and there is no explanation to justify why it is necessary to create a separate structure for all offenses, including corruption.

IV. On the abrogation of the legal provisions related to the taking over the budget of the other Courts by The High Court of Cassation and Justice

Related to the proposal made by the Justice Department concerning the review of the „justice laws”, when the Law no. 304/2004 was adopted, the goal was the ensuring of the independence and the stability of the Judges, regardless their level of jurisdiction in which they may activate; the term of January the 1st 2008, for the taking over of the Courts' budgets by The High Court of Cassation and Justice, was established on purely technical grounds, which makes any delay unjustifiable, at least until January the 1st 2018.

Whatever are the motives discussed in the public space, regarding the delay of the implementation of the legislator's will, it can be easily considered that if it existed the will to make the change, it would have been done through a legislated shift of attributions or by signing a protocol between the legal entities evolved, by which the officials should be transferred / delegated / seconded and the logistics should be made available, so that all the activities continue without interruption.

According to the Article no. 25 from the Romanian Constitution, the Judges are designated by the President of the Republic and they cannot be removed from the magistracy; any proposal regarding the appointment, promotion, transfer and punishment of the Judges fall on the exclusive power the Supreme Counsel of Magistracy and the position of the Judges is incompatible with any other public or private position, except for teaching positions in higher education.

In the legal level below the Constitution, the magistrates' statute is regulated in the Law no. 303/2004. According to this law, the Judges are independent, they obey only the law and they must be impartial. The second Chapter from the quoted Law establishes a number of incompatibilities and interdictions applicable for Judges, Prosecutors and Assistant-Magistrates.

The Fundamental Principles regarding the independence of Magistracy, in the way that they were adopted in the 7th Congress of United Nations on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders (Milan, august the 26th – September the 6th 1985) and ratified by the General Assembly of the United Nations through Resolutions no. 40/30 from November the 29th 1985 and no. 40/146 from December 13th 1985, provide in an express manner in the article 11 that « the duration of the commission of the Judges, their independence, their safety, their remuneration, the working environment, their retirement remuneration and retirement age are adequately guaranteed by the law »

The Minimal Standards of the Judiciary Independence, adopted by the International Bar Association in 1982, provide that « Judicial salaries and pensions shall be adequate and should be regularly adjusted to account for price increases independent of executive control. »

The Recommendation no. R(94)12 regarding the independence, the effectiveness and the mission of the Judges, adopted in October the 13th 1994 by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, emphasizing the importance of the independence of Judges purposely to enforce The Rule of Law in democratic countries and considering the Article no. 6 from European Convention on Human Rights and also the Fundamental Principles regarding the independence of Magistracy, quoted above, established, among other important measures that have to be adopted by the States, that is the duty « of the State to watch that the Status and remuneration of the Judges should be according to the dignity of the profession and the responsibilities they assume. »

The Recommendation no. CM/Rec(2010)12 a the Committee of Ministers of the State Members regarding the Judges : the independence, the effectiveness and the responsibilities (adopted by the Committee in November the 17th 2010, on the occasion of the 1098th meeting of the Ministers' delegates) provides that « 54. The remuneration of the Judges should be established according to their mission, responsibilities, in such a manner that would make them immune to any sort of pressure meant to influence their decisions. There must be safeguards in order to maintain a reasonable remuneration in case of illness, maternity leave or paternity leave, also in case of the payment of an old-age retirement, that should have a proportional amount, reasonably comparable to the remuneration of an acting Judge. There has to be a specific legislative regulation meant to protect the Judges'

remunerations against a reduction in remuneration that would specifically target the Judges. »

The Article no. 6.4 from the European Chart regarding the Status of the Judges, adopted the year 1998, provides “ It specifies in this context that judges who have reached the age of judicial retirement after the requisite time spent as judges must benefit from payment of a retirement pension, the level of which must be as close as possible to the level of their final salary as a judge. ”, and the article no. 1.8 from the same Chat refers to the necessity of consulting the Judges “ by their representatives or professional associations on any proposed change in their statute or any change proposed as to the basis on which they are remunerated, or as to their social welfare. ”

The Venice Commission (The Venice Commission of the Council of Europe through Law) in the Report on the Independence of the Judicial System, adopted within the pale of the 82nd plenary session (Venice, march the 12th-13th 2010) holds that the salary of a Judge must be compliant to the dignity of the profession and the appropriate remuneration is necessary in order to protect Judges from external interference. Exempli gratia, the Constitution of Poland guarantees to all Judges a consistent salary relative to the dignity of their profession and to the scope of their duties. Their remuneration must be established according to the social situation in the country and must be comparable with the level of salaries that the high officials have, determined according to a general, objective and transparent standard. Any sort of reward, gratification, bonus including a discretionary element must be excluded.

In all these documents, principles and measures established regarding the Status and the rights of magistrates are directly related to the provisions contained within the Article no. 10 from the Universal Declaration on Human Rights and those contained within the Article no. 6 from European Convention on Human Rights, concerning to the fundamental right of any person to be judged by a competent, independent and impartial tribunal, established according to the law. Even though some of the quoted documents have only the power of recommendation, those provisions and the purpose sought in those provisions have, individually target directly legal stipulations situated in treaties to which Romania is a party and, by consequence, they enrol in the spirit the provisions found in the Articles no. 11 and no. 20 from the Romanian Constitution.

In Romania, the management of the Courts' budget it is an attribution of the Justice Department, in consideration of it's legal main right to distribute credits from the State Budget.

This legislated solution is contrary to the recommendations of the Consultative Counsel of the European Judges (CCEJ) and it raises a serious question on the independence of the justice system, as long as its own budget is controlled by the executive and legislative powers.

The state of underfinancing of the judicial system, the non-payment and the over-dues of the salaries and the rights related to salaries (as they are recognized through subsequent judicial decisions), the inequities from within the salary system, the refusal of the executive power to give up its financial strings regarding the Courts, by passing the management of their budget to the Supreme Court, the increasingly impingement of the main elements of the Status of Judges and Prosecutors constitute the bases of the general protest of Magistrates, back in 2009, that caused a 30days block of all judicial activities.

The financial resources may represent for the Justice Department, respectively for the executive power, an element of pressure against the magistrates and any abrupt modification of the remuneration system might become an injury factor to the independence of the magistrates.

V. Regarding the naming procedure of chief magistrates

In this regard the Justice Minister proposes the revision of the laws of justice, as it follows:

- The President and the Vice-Presidents of the High Court of Cassation and Justice will be named by Romania's President after the Superior Council of Magistracy – section for judges proposal, among the High Court of Cassation and Justice's judges, who ruled at this Court at least 2 years and had not been disciplinary sanctioned.
- The General Prosecutor of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice, the First Deputy Prosecutor General and his Deputy, the Chief Prosecutor of the National Anticorruption Directorate, his Deputies, the Heads of Sections of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice and to the National Anticorruption Directorate, also the Directorate for Investigating Organized Crime and Terrorism Chief Prosecutor and their Deputies are named by the section for prosecutors, at the Justice Minister's proposal.
- Due to a transparent judicial procedure, the Justice Minister presents at least 2 proposals, among the prosecutors having at least 10 years seniority in the practice of the prosecution activity.

1. Regarding the intention to modify

These proposed changes to justice laws don't have any judicial reason, but obviously, the reasons could be of a different kind.

Firstly, beyond any further arguments the naming procedure in these positions was previously established, but in order for Romania to join the European Union, agreed with the members of the Community field and accepted by the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism.

Afterwards, none of the annual reports criticized the naming procedure in these positions, nor sustained that the balance of state powers could be affected.

2. The proposed changes regarding the Heads of Prosecutor's Offices

As the proposal it's being made by the Justice Minister, the Superior Council of Magistracy has not a full liberty of choice, the alternative of a refusal being almost excluded within the Decision No 98/7 February 2008 of the Romania Constitutional Court.

This is an unsafe procedure, because, on one side, the SCM has only the choice of a "Yes" or a "No", regarding the Justice Minister's proposal, couldn't be able to choose between the large number of Romanian prosecutors, and on the other side the responsibility for the decision could be lost between the SCM members who might hidden at the guard of the secret vote.

In fact, the Justice Minister will be the one who consolidates a main position in the naming of the Heads of Prosecutor's Offices.

Much worse is that this mechanism which allows the Justice Minister to name the Heads of Prosecutor's Offices (knowing that he has to choose between 2 proposals) liaised with the proposal which allows the Chief Prosecutor to infirm solutions based either on illegal reason (as it is now), or on unfounded reason (as it's proposed), generates the right conditions for a political control of the Prosecutor's Offices, which would affect the credibility of the Criminal Justice.

Therefore, it would not exist any possibility for a democratic control of the criminal investigations, which could be finished or initialized based on the decision of some Chief Prosecutors politically named by the Justice Minister.

Among all the investment procedures or removal from the important positions of the Prosecutor's Offices (The General Prosecutor's Office, the National Anticorruption Directorate, the Directorate for Investigating Organized Crime and Terrorism) the current procedure was the only one to generate the conditions of a real criminal justice in Romania, thanks to a tripartite mechanism which offers counter-weights like: the Justice Minister (Government's representative), the President of Romania (directly elected by the citizens), SCM formed of magistrates and civil society representatives.

By maintaining the role of the Justice Minister and removing from the process the Romanian President – the Romanian dignitary with the main democratic legitimacy, directly elected by the majority of Romanian citizens – it would generate a serious imbalance.

VI. On modifying the recruitment system of magistrates

The Minister of Justice proposes to review the "laws of justice", in the following sense:

- Candidates must be physically and psychologically apt to serve as magistrate;
- Candidates must be at least 30 years of age;
- Candidates must have at least 5 years of effective employment in one of the legal professions regulated by law;
- The admission examination for direct entry into the magistracy, with a 5-year seniority in other legal professions is removed;
- The admission examination to the NIM (National Institute of Magistracy) will be announced at least 6 months before the date set; - it is currently announced 60 days before the date set;
- Justice trainees will benefit from the reimbursement of learning materials;
- Justice trainees will receive free accommodation in NIM's accommodation facilities;
- Legal provisions on incompatibilities and interdictions of judges and prosecutors will also apply to justice trainees;
- Justice trainees will have the right to be reimbursed for the rent up to a maximum of 50% of the amount due under this title to magistrates in case there are not enough free places for accommodation in NIM facilities;
- After the completion of the NIM courses, the justice trainees need to pass a graduation exam which verifies the acquirement of the knowledge, skills and abilities necessary to perform the function of judge or prosecutor, as well as a psychological test;

- Changes are suggested regarding the competence of cases that can be assigned to trainee judges, both in civil and criminal matters;

- The trainee judges also attend court hearings with other types of causes than those provided in paragraph (1), by rotation, to the judges' panels of the court composed of definitive judges established by the president of the court. In the cases in which he / she is assisting, the trainee judge draws up a consultative report on the case and may draft the decision at the request of the chair of the panel.

As a first observation, it must be said that this idea was not publicly debated in the previous rounds of discussions, from 2016 until today, being a newly presented idea.

Apparently, these measures can be viewed with goodwill - who does not want a mature and well-prepared magistrate? But at a closer analysis it must be noticed that they will have the effect of destroying the NIM's performance system and, in the medium term, lowering the level of training both within the institute and within the magistracy institution.

Thus, the current system allows the presentation of the best-prepared students of each generation, of the valedictorians at the entrance examination at the Institute.

This ensures both a high level of professionalism within the magistracy and an increased exigence, and justifies the existence of the Institute as an elite entity meant to prepare the magistrates.

In the proposed system, this would not be possible.

Valedictorians will naturally choose other legal professions and after reaching the age of 30, assuming they are proficient at their jobs (as lawyer, being a notary public etc.), they will have no reason to look to NMI (INM).

For this reason, the pool of candidates is expected to suffer a decrease in terms of their level of preparation as most of them would probably be jurists merely on paper (given the current state of legal affairs, this is impossible to deny), candidates who will have failed in other legal professions.

In time, after repeated admission exams will have failed to find suitable candidates for all the vacant positions, this fact will lead to the decrease in the level of difficulty of exams, which in turn will result in a pool of magistrates that are less well prepared.

Of course, there will also be exceptions as perhaps some well-prepared candidates would be found but the trend will be the one previously explained.

If the current system can be blamed for certain aspects and, generally, in public, it is said that there is a lack of maturity, this shortcoming can be remedied through other mechanisms, through the extension of the initial period of training at the Institute, through the diversification of the training activities (for instance, in the Netherlands two of the other legal professions require a mandatory 2-year period of training), through the amendment of their jurisdiction for the first years after their permanent appointment (for example, they would be precluded from adjudicating criminal cases or family law disputes where the need for social experience is discernible) etc.

Additionally, in the current system, given that candidates graduate from law school at the age of 22-23 and the NMI (INM), including the training period, lasts for 3 years, it follows that, in fact, a magistrate is effectively starting his work on cases at the age of 27, should (s)he indeed be admitted on the first attempt.

Keeping the competence of the Magistrate to judge the technical areas in his first three years of career (contravention complaints, for example) could have the same effect as that which it intends the proposals examined, without however upset the system.

A final reason for which the analysed proposal will not operate is that the situation is different in Romania, in comparison to the Western countries, where the entry in the Magistracy is done later.

Thus, in other Member States with a consolidated democracy, the receipt of the Magistracy represents a natural course of what was called in the Roman Empire "the road of honour", a normal step in the professional career, either to return the society a part of the benefits that have been offered, either to continue to build the career in the service of the justice. In those countries, however, the amount of work of a Judge is much smaller, compared to the amount of work of a Romanian Judge. Also, there are necessary – we are saying this as directly as possible - personal sacrifices, including those of physical nature, the resistance to stress and to public attacks on the profession. These downsides have been compensated for the moment with the abnegation of young people who have sought and found their vocation, especially because the reform presumed, among other things, attracting those who have graduated from the faculty of law after the Revolution in 1989.

The proposal of the Justice Department is not based on a study drawn up by the independent psychologists or a sociological survey, to take account of the specific context of our country, based on the statistics and partial objectives (either at the level of courts of medium level), in which to consider issues such as:

- Checking the results of the evaluations of periodic training, to see if they are weaker in the case of the magistrates under the age of 30 years to receive in the profession, or who have not had the age of 5 years in another legal profession;
- Checking the number cassations or amendments of judgments, in order to observe if the ratio is greater in the case of the magistrates under the age of 30 years or of those who had at least 5 years of professional experience in another legal field;
- Checking the grades, obtained from the promotion exams, according to the specified criteria, to indicate if there is a deficiency caused by the lack of "experience" (the exams would check both theoretical and practical abilities);
- Checking irregularities, disciplinary action or conduct, for the same purpose, considering that they cover the relationship with the lawyers, the citizens, the court;

The Proposal of the Justice Minister is not based on a prior opinion of the Scientific Council of the National Institute of Magistracy or an impact assessment regarding human resources, which takes account of:

- The number of vacancies in the judiciary (judges and prosecutors);
- The number of additional posts, aiming to complete the implementation of the new Codes or of the public procurement laws, for example;
- The necessity of adding new jobs, considering the anticipated increase of the level of the activity (for example, because of the decision of The Constitutional Court of Romania relating to the threshold in Appeals);
- The number of the posts that after the normal evolution of the removal from office of the magistrates but also due to the wave of retirements this decade will be vacancies;
- The hindering of the promotion system due to the suggested changes (the increase of the effective required seniority), which will be affecting the professional mobility toward higher Courts;

- The low number of the candidates for direct admission to Magistracy even now (having 5 years of seniority in any legal profession), this would be the only allowed category for the Admission to the National Institute for Magistracy, according to the Justice Minister (with an additional condition: the age of thirty years old);

- The weight of the recruitment by examination (NIM or direct admission), related to the subject difficulties over the last years, preserving an exacting standard;

- The possibility of making an opinion poll on the occasion of the admission examination for NMI (INM) and Direct admission in magistracy from 3rd of September 2017, that sets out the extent that the proportion of those who meet the conditions, and also the proportion of those who indicated their intention to participate to an admission system such as the Ministry did propose.

To the extent that the problem of lack of experience would be correctly identified through studies and polls, then its causes and solving methods are not the same, not the simplistic ones which, in addition to the fact that they are shattering the dreams of generations of Law Graduates, well prepared, will also lead to a decrease of prestige of NMI, influence and relevance, but also to a mitigation in the long term, of the level of training for both, justice trainees and magistrates – afterwards.

VII. On the changes attempted to be made to the conditions of promoting within magistracy

Regarding this proposal made by the Minister of Justice to amend "the justice laws", the CVM reports welcoming the evolution of the magistracy indicated in a certain manner that a merit-based promotion ensures the foundation of an independent judiciary body, free of any influences, both from its inside and from the outside. The return to a manner of promotion on subjective criteria, that lack any form of objective control made by the magistrates, with no possibility to challenge and no predictability, will deprive the judiciary of this foundation.

The establishing of an evidence, for the promotion, evaluating the documents drawn up by the magistrates could lead to situations, for example, in which a seconded magistrate who drew up only administrative documents (administrative proposals approved by the minister / president of SCM / director of the National Institute of Magistracy etc.) receive a maximum rating, as the administrative notes were perfectly drafted, while a sitting judge, with hundreds of decisions annually ruled, have the bad luck and his/her decisions ruled in repetitive cases be analysed in a succinct manner, the decisions being criticisable for „the lack of imagination” in reasoning at least. The latter will not promote, while the seconded judge will be able, without problems, to claim a position to the superior court. The text presumes an effective promotion procedure that is deeply subjective allowing for a lax selection, based on an extreme subjective non-transparent criteria, of those who will have access to the hierarchical superior levels of the courts and prosecutor's offices. That is to say, an extreme non-transparent procedure for the selection of judges / prosecutors is established, the solution blocking, for extremely unclear reasons, the career path of the magistrates who are not among those favoured by the evaluators. This manner of promotion seriously impairs the independence of the justice system from the perspective of the selection procedure of the magistrates for the superior courts, on the basis of other criteria than the strict professional and merit-based ones. The possibility to regulate the promotion procedure in question by secondary legislation is not only extremely criticisable in terms of opportunity, but also questionable in terms of constitutionality, as long as the provisions of art. 125 par. (2) of the Constitution impose the rule that the promotion of the judges fall within the powers of the Superior Council of Magistracy, under the conditions established by the organic law.

As a consequence, the promotion to the hierarchical superior level of the magistracy is to be made through an extreme no-transparent, subjective procedure (the evaluation of some documents drawn up by the magistrate representing, in fact, the opinion of the evaluators about those documents, the individual opinion being, by definition, of no objective nature) and also volatile (being possible to be regulated at will and directed depending on the interests at moment – under the circumstances in which the procedure is to be established by the SCM Regulation), a circumstance exclusively resulting in the quality of the magistracy being impaired, by increasing the level of dissatisfaction and mistrust, within the system in the first place, at the reliability and objectivity of the promotion procedure. The questionable character of the promotion procedure within the system cannot be kept only intra-professionally, its export to the media and society will lead inclusively to a decrease in trust in the act of justice (the citizen / journalist will have no reason to trust a magistrate promoted to the superior courts following a selection process that is questionable within the judicial profession).

The return to a manner of promotion on subjective criteria, that lack any form of objective control made by the magistrates, with no possibility to challenge and no predictability, will deprive the judiciary of this foundation. We draw the attention that the desired amendments related to the promotion were rejected by the General Assembly of Judges and Prosecutors with over 600 ballots against in September 2015.

In the context in which the promotion of the magistrates in non-managerial positions, according to the current regulation, caused over the years dissatisfactions among the candidates related to the quality of the subjects, the manner of dealing with the complaints challenging the evaluations, to inequalities in the tie-breaking of the candidates with various specialities, remained unsolved till the present day, the introduction in the pass mark of more subjective variables is inexplicable, total non-transparent variables, as: hundreds of various evaluation commissions at the national level, subjective and unpredictable criteria, the inexistence of a transitional rule, making use of a mark obtained following the evaluation of the documents drawn up within a speciality when promoting in another position with another speciality, the impossibility to establish a common base for the evaluation of the magistrates who effectively carry out their activity in courts/prosecuting units and of the magistrates seconded to the Superior Council of Magistracy, the National Institute of Magistracy, the Ministry of Justice etc., although they have the possibility to candidate for the same position (the last years' experience showing that the tie-breaking mark is at the level of hundredths), and the list of problems remains open.

According to the Fundamental Principles on the Independence of the Judiciary, adopted by the Seventh United States Congress, approved by the resolutions of the General Assembly of the United Nations Organisation no. 40/32 of November 29th, 1985 and 40/146 of December 13th, 1985, „ Persons selected for judicial office shall be individuals of integrity and ability with appropriate training or qualifications in law. Any method of judicial selection shall safeguard against judicial appointments for improper motives" (point. 10). Moreover, point 13 provides that „Promotion of judges, wherever such a system exists, should be based on objective factors, in particular ability, integrity and experience.” The Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe recommended to the governments of the Member States to adopt or strengthen the all measures needed in the promotion of the role of the judges, in an individual manner, but also of the magistracy, as a whole, with the view to promoting their independency applying, in particular, the following principles: (...) I.2.c. „any decision referring to the professional career of the judges has to be based on objective criteria, the selection and promotion of the judges has to be based on their merits and in accordance with their professional training, integrity, competence and efficiency”.

Any „objective criteria” seeking to guarantee the merit-based selection and career of the judges, by taking into account the professional training, integrity, ability and efficiency” can be defined only in general terms. Firstly, a content is sought to be offered to the general aspirations for „merit-based appointment” and „objectivism”, aligning the theory with the reality.

The objective standards are deemed necessary not only to exclude the political influences, but also in order to prevent the risk of favouritism, conservatism and of „nepotism”, existing to the extent in which the appointments are made in an unstructured manner. Although the appropriate professional experience is an important condition for the promotion, the seniority in office, in the modern world, is no longer generally accepted as a dominant principle applied for determining the promotion. The public shows an increased interest not only for the independency, but also for the quality of the judiciary and especially in times when great changes occur. A possible sacrifice in terms of the dynamism may occur when the promotions are exclusively based on the seniority, which cannot be justified by a real gain in terms of independency.

VIII. Regarding the reinstatement to magistracy, without examination, of judges or prosecutors with at least 10 years of relevant experience

Regarding this proposal of the Minister of Justice to review the "laws of justice", the reinstatement to magistracy, without further examination, of former judges or prosecutors with at least 10 years of experience in these professions is another controversial element found in the MCV Reports.

The profession of being a magistrate is and must remain a career profession that requires vocation. A magistrate who elects another system, for financial (lawyering), political or any other reasons, must assume the consequences of his or her decision. This proposal leaves an open door to the magistracy system, and also delivers the possibility of juggling with entries into and exits from the system, based on considerations other than the professional ones and considering interests other than those of the justice.

The justification given to this change makes it look like the magistrate is almost constrained, due to the incompatibility regime, to leave the system. But if the magistrate resigns once, it means that he does not accept the system's constraints of which he was thoroughly informed at the beginning of his career, thus being fully aware of what is expected of him. There is no guarantee that the magistrate, after another five years for example, will not resign again from the system, because the incompatibilities and deontological constraints will certainly continue to be regulated in the future, too. Such psycho-professional instability is simply unacceptable, particularly when provided as an explanation emanating from the highest level of magistracy.

Another issue is raised by the concepts of independence and impartiality. A magistrate unsatisfied with the regime of the judiciary may choose to resign and become a lawyer, where he/she has the possibility of being in contact with the criminal environment if he/she works at the criminal court, as he/she was previously a judge/prosecutor. Subsequently, if he/she re-joins the system, and has to adopt a position that is required to be independent and impartial, it will be extremely difficult to achieve, especially because he/she will not appear to be impartial and independent for an external, objective and informed viewpoint. Likewise, a former magistrate may choose to act as a politician, a representative of a political party, or simply in a profession that is outside the legal field. All of these hypotheses have nothing in common with an existing vocation, with the calling of the profession. Through this legislative gap, we cannot help but wonder about the external appearance of the magistrates that have vocation and remain in the system despite not only the massive workload and the low salaries that do not correspond to the level of responsibilities and workload, but also the incompatibilities.

A magistrate might take a step back from these incompatibilities to substantially increase his or her income by joining the Bar or through other methods that do not implicate any constraints, or simply to gain glory and extend his/her political network, after which the SCM allows his/her return to the magistracy, where he/she will share an office with a colleague who all this time remained in the system, by way of example, due to being, should we say, less inspired.

IX. Romanian Judges' Forum regarding the salary rights of magistrates according to their current positions, regardless of their professional status

Regarding this proposal of the Minister of Justice to review the "laws of justice", first of all, such an idea has never been debated, this being the first time such an amendment has been made, without any previous consultation with the body of magistrates.

Secondly, such a measure is likely to affect the status of the magistrate in one of its essential components- independence, diminishing its authority.

Such a solution raises several problems:

a) it is a discriminatory solution, being thus unconstitutional:

- throughout the budgetary system consists of certain rules based on promotion in stages, given by degrees, that affect salaries; in all these cases, the acquisition of a higher position does not compel the person in question to change the workplace and does not make the payment of the degree of such a change conditional; (see annexes to Law No 153/2017 on the remuneration of staff paid out of public funds);

- in the case of the military system, the acquisition of a higher rank does not imply that the military judge/prosecutor will perform other tasks or that he will occupy another role, but only that it contributes to strengthening the vocation to ascend in the military hierarchy;

- in the case of the "diplomatic" occupational family (diplomatic degree is paid regardless of function);

- in the case of assimilated staff from the Justice Ministry, where a large number of the personnel already have a rank equivalent to the one given for the Courts of Appeal, the situation will be aberrant, and the consequences would be preposterous. But this has already been confirmed on several plans, for instance salary and promotion, the assimilated personnel not being limited by the number of vacant places, unlike magistrates. The consequence would be that such assimilated staff would actually be given more rights than the ones whose jobs they bear resemblance to.

- in the case of teachers, doctors (but also in other categories), in the case of school inspectors, management functions for auxiliary teaching functions, patrimony administrator, etc., hospital managers, general managers, research directors, economic directors etc., in the case of the "culture" occupational family; in the case of staff from public authorities and institutions fully financed from their own revenues, subordinated to, under the authority of, in the coordination of the Government, ministries and other specialized bodies of the central and local public administration, under the coordination of the Prime Minister, and of those under the control of Parliament; in the case of the "administrative" occupational family.

b) it represents an intrusion into the status of the magistrate, being thus unconstitutional;

- given that the magistrate's income is included in the notion of his status, designed to guarantee his independence, the diminishing of income in such a way means the impairment of the status, which impinges on independence, so that the measure is, from this point of view, unlawful;

- no justification for such a measure has been provided, so it can not be known whether its purpose is legitimate or arbitrary;

- Even if a justification (purpose) has been found, the measure does not maintain a level of constitutional proportionality, since it represents the most drastic intrusion into the status of the magistrate, without taking into account other alternative methods of fulfilling it.

c) it raises even more problems of inequity:

- assimilated staff will continue to benefit from the professional grades, although they do not perform judicial activities specific to the profession of magistrate;

- unlike magistrates, the assimilated staff will advance in rank and receive all the rights corresponding to the positions, although they will work in the same office, on the same computer, doing the same work;

- it will diminish the professional development of the magistrate, which will no longer be attracted by the perspective of presenting to sterile thorough examinations, which will not bring any benefit; the magistrate cannot be accused of having regard to the financial aspect of his status as long as the constraints of the position are well known.

X. Regarding the strict delimitation between the judges' careers and the prosecutors' careers

Regarding this proposal made by the Minister of Justice to amend "the justice laws", one has to take into account the fact that the contentious constitutional court has already mentioned by its Decision no.331 of April 3rd, 2007 referring to the exception of unconstitutionality of the provisions of art.29 par.(7), art.35 related to art.27 par.(3) and art.35 letter.(f) of the Law no.317/2004 on the Superior Council of Magistracy and art.52 par.(1) of the Law no.303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors, that „according to art.133 par.(1) of the Constitution, the Superior Council of Magistracy is responsible for guaranteeing the independence of the justice system. This being the case, the circumstance that the promotion of the judges to the High Court of Cassation and Justice is made by the Superior Council of Magistracy, in its Plenum, consisting also of prosecutors and representatives of the civil society, through the selection procedure provided by art.52 par. (1) of the Law no.303/2004 and not through contest is not of the nature to impair the impartiality of the judges of the supreme court.

Thus, the provisions of art.52 par. (1) of the Law no.303/2004 are not of the nature to infringe neither the provisions of art.21 par. (3) and art.124 par. (2) of the Fundamental Law nor the provisions of art.6 paragraph 1 of the Convention on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, the author of the exception enjoying all the guarantees of a fair trial performed in front of an impartial court.

Moreover, the provisions of art.52 par. (1) of the Law no.303/2004 are not of the nature to infringe the provisions of art.124 par. (3) of the Fundamental Law too, these having been adopted in accordance with the constitutional provisions of art.133 referring to the structure of the Superior Council of Magistracy.

The Constitutional Court notes also that the dispositions of art.35 related to the dispositions of art.27 par. (3) of the Law no.317/2004 express the powers of the Superior Council of Magistracy, as they were regulated by art.134 of the Fundamental Law. Therefore, these cannot be construed as infringing the provisions of art.124 par. (3) of the Constitution".

Moreover, the manner in which the constitutional legislator regulated the formation of the Superior Council of Magistracy cannot make the object of a constitutionality control.

Finally, the provisions of art.35 letter (f) of the Law no.317/2004 are in accordance with the provisions of art.134 par. (4) of the Fundamental Law, according to which the Superior Council of Magistracy performs other functions too, set by its organic law, being responsible for guaranteeing the independence of the justice system. Thus, no violation is brought to the provisions of art.61 par. (1) of the Constitution, according to which the Parliament is the supreme representative body of the Romanian people and the sole legislative authority of the state, as the regulatory function by organic law falls within its exclusive competence, and the regulation referred to in the criticised text of law is adopted in accordance with the law.

As a consequence, the Constitutional Court appears to assert that under the circumstances in which the decisions of the Superior Council of Magistracy (SCM) are made, according to art. 133 par. 5 of the Constitution, by secret ballot in order for the members of SCM not to be exposed to external pressures, under the circumstances of a lack of an imperative mandate, the fact that the prosecutors are part of SCM with their retained members and take the decisions in the Plenum together with the judges members and the members of the civil society, the respective decisions are not of the nature to impair the independence of the judges.

The circumstance that distinct sections exist in respect of the judges or the prosecutors does not involve the fact that the decisions made by these sections are final or that the complaints challenging these decisions are solved by the very section that ruled the challenged decision.

The constitutional architecture of the Superior Council of Magistracy, a collegiate body, involves the challenging in the Plenum of the decisions ordered by each section (except for the decisions ruled by the disciplinary sections, also as an effect of a constitutional text).

The only manner in which a strict delimitation between the judges' careers and the prosecutors' careers can be made is by a constitutional amendment.

In France or Belgium, the traditional constitutional models for Romania too, the presidents of the supreme courts have recently ruled in favour of the unity of the judiciary within the same council.<sup>9</sup>

3700 ROMANIAN MAGISTRATES:
MEMORANDUM FOR THE REJECTION OF THE AMENDMENTS TO THE "LAWS OF JUSTICE" (LAW 303/2004, LAW 304/2004 AND LAW 317 / 2004)

To the Government of Romania,

To Mr Mihai Tudose,
Prime Minister of the Government

To Professor Tudorel Toader, Minister of Justice

Your Excellencies,

On 23 August 2017, in a PowerPoint paper presented at a press conference, the Justice Minister proposed a set of amendments to the "laws of justice" (Law 303/2004, Law 304/2004 and Law 317/2004), without impact studies and without prior consultation on key legislative issues, in order to ensure decisional transparency vis-à-vis magistrates (judges and prosecutors) and civil society.

The draft was communicated to the Superior Council of Magistracy.

In its meeting of 28 September 2017 the Plenum of the Superior Council of Magistracy issued a negative opinion on the whole project, taking into account the votes casted in numerous General Assemblies of judges and prosecutors, held in numerous courts and prosecutor's offices, where they were rejected, in overwhelming proportion.

Among other things, the negative votes referred to:

- all substantive changes to the draft legislation,
- the reorganization of the Judicial Inspection, as a legal personality structure within the Ministry of Justice,
- the appointments at the top of the judiciary (the Prosecutor General of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice - HCCJ, first deputy and his deputy, the chief prosecutor of the National Anti-Corruption Department - DNA, his deputies, the chief prosecutors of the Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ and the DNA, as well as the chief prosecutor of DIICOT and their deputies)
- the proposed amendments regarding the magistrates' liability regime, susceptible of violating the independence of the judiciary;
- the change of the magistracy recruiting system - the changes are regarding the promotion to a higher court / higher prosecutor's Office;
- the maintenance of the actual status quo regarding the budget of the courts of justice which is administrated by the Ministry of Justice;
- the establishment within the Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ, of a specialized directorate with exclusive jurisdiction to carry out criminal prosecution for the acts committed by judges and prosecutors, regardless of their nature and gravity (jurisdiction per personam, aiming to a professional category instead of illegal deeds).

In 2017, Romania is still being subject to the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism (MCV) [European Commission Decision 2006/928/CE of December 13, 2006], 10 years after its accession to the European Union, precisely in order to align its justice system with those of the states with historical democratic traditions. Thus, it is no longer acceptable the return in time to legislative regulations existing before 1989, it is no longer acceptable the restoration of placing the judiciary under political control, and it is no longer acceptable the unjustified extension of the duties of the Minister of Justice.

All these substantive changes proposed by the Minister of Justice flagrantly violate the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism, its constant reports and the foundations of a normal magistracy in a democratic state. These proposals, once enacted, will influence the career and professional activity of magistrates for a long time and will create imbalances in the judiciary, aspects that have been repeatedly condemned by the European Commission.

By Decision no. 2 of January 11, 2012, the Constitutional Court of Romania considered that, by being a member of the European Union, the Romanian state has the obligation to apply this mechanism and follow the recommendations established in this framework, according to the provisions of Article 148 paragraph (4) of the Constitution, according to which "the Parliament, the President of Romania, the Government and the judicial authority shall guarantee the fulfilment of the obligations resulting from the acts of accession and from the provisions of paragraph 2".

Thus, although the opinion of the Superior Council of Magistracy is not mandatory, according to the law, it also cannot be ignored, as the recent jurisprudence of the Constitutional Court of Romania develops and emphasizes in particular a new dimension of the provisions of Article 1 para. 5) of the Constitution ("In Romania, observance of the Constitution, of its supremacy and of the laws is mandatory"), in the sense of attaching its normative content to the principle of loyal cooperation between state's institutions and authorities [2]. Therefore, the legislative norms which ask for the opinion of the Superior Council of Magistracy must be interpreted in the spirit of loyalty to the Fundamental Law and in the spirit of an obligation for the public authorities to apply the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism and to follow the recommendations established in this framework.

Even though the draft issued for consultation by the Ministry of Justice partially contains proposals formulated over time by the Superior Council of Magistracy, Magistrates or Professional Associations, these proposals are simple corrections of the current system. The unrealistic preparation of a genuine "judicial experiment", in the absence of any impact studies and forecasts, may lead to very difficult or even impossible to remedy consequences.

Therefore, in view of the will of the overwhelming majority of magistrates, we ask you, in order to remove any doubts about the misappropriation of this project to the detriment of the magistracy, to dispose its withdrawal (rejection at the Government level, as the case may be, avoiding its advancement to the Parliament), and to initiate and develop a concrete and effective dialogue with magistrates, the Superior Council of Magistracy, professional associations of judges and prosecutors, in order to improve the legislative framework, after carrying out appropriate impact studies and after presenting serious and credible motives regarding the proposed changes, in the purpose of modernizing the magistracy and the justice system, in line with the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism.

Please receive, Your Excellencies, the expression of our highest consideration,

A SMALL “REFERENDUM” OF MAGISTRATES: MORE THAN HALF OF JUDGES AND PROSECUTORS IN ROMANIA ASK THE GOVERNMENT TO WITHDRAW THE DRAFT AMENDMENT TO THE “LAWS OF JUSTICE”

The initiators of the Memorandum inform that until Tuesday, October 23 2017 at 16.00, a number of 3685 Romanian judges and prosecutors (out of a total of 6979 in the Romanian courts and prosecutor's offices, respectively 52,80%), 8 assistant magistrates and 173 justice trainees adhered to the Memorandum for the withdrawal of the draft of the "Laws of Justice", addressed to the Government of Romania, as a result of the refusal of the latter to take into account the negative opinion on the entire project issued by the Superior Council of Magistracy, in a meeting on September 28th, 2017, in accordance with the votes cast in numerous general assemblies of judges and prosecutors in courts and prosecutor's offices, in which all the main changes of the draft law were overwhelmingly rejected.

The signatories of the Memorandum consider these changes promoted by the Minister of Justice (in particular, the reorganization of the Judicial Inspection, as a legal entity within the Ministry of Justice; the appointments at the top of the judiciary - the Prosecutor General of the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice - HCCJ, first deputy and his deputy, the chief prosecutor of the National Anti-Corruption Department - DNA, his deputies, the chief prosecutors of the Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ and the DNA, as well as the chief prosecutor of DIICOT and their deputies; - the proposed amendments regarding the magistrates' liability regime, susceptible of violating the independence of the judiciary; the change of the magistracy recruiting system: the age limit of 30 years for admission to the National Institute of Magistracy and the requirement of seniority in another legal profession for at least 5 years; the change of the promotion system to a higher court / higher prosecutor's Office; the maintenance of the actual status quo regarding the budget of the courts of justice which is administrated by the Ministry of Justice; the establishment within the Prosecutor's Office attached to HCCJ, of a specialized directorate with exclusive jurisdiction to carry out criminal prosecution for the acts committed by judges and prosecutors, regardless of their nature and gravity - jurisdiction per personam, aiming to a professional category instead of illegal deeds, without regard of their severity) flagrantly violates the Co-operation and Verification Mechanism, its consistent reports and the foundations of the magistracy in a democratic state.

At the same time, the magistrates who have signed the Memorandum show that although the opinion of the Superior Council of Magistracy is not, according to the law, mandatory, according to the law, it also cannot be ignored, as the recent jurisprudence of the Constitutional Court of Romania develops and emphasizes in particular a new dimension of the provisions of Article 1 para. 5) of the Constitution ("In Romania, observance of the Constitution, of its supremacy and of the laws is mandatory"), in the sense of attaching its normative content to the principle of loyal cooperation between state's institutions and authorities. Therefore, the legislative norms which ask for the opinion of the Superior Council of Magistracy must be interpreted in the spirit of loyalty to the Fundamental Law and in the spirit of an obligation for the public authorities to apply the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism and to follow the recommendations established in this framework.

Contrary to the data circulated by the press, the total number of judges and prosecutors in office in Romania is 6979 and not 9000. It results from the lists with current existing magistrates in offices and vacancies at 04.10.2017, for prosecutors, respectively on 01.09.2017, for judges, displayed on the web site of the Superior Council of Magistracy.

At the mentioned data, there were:

- 4944 positions of judge on the scheme, excluding the High Court of Cassation and Justice (125 judges), of which 4362 currently performing in office, excluding the High Court of Cassation and Justice (119 judges).

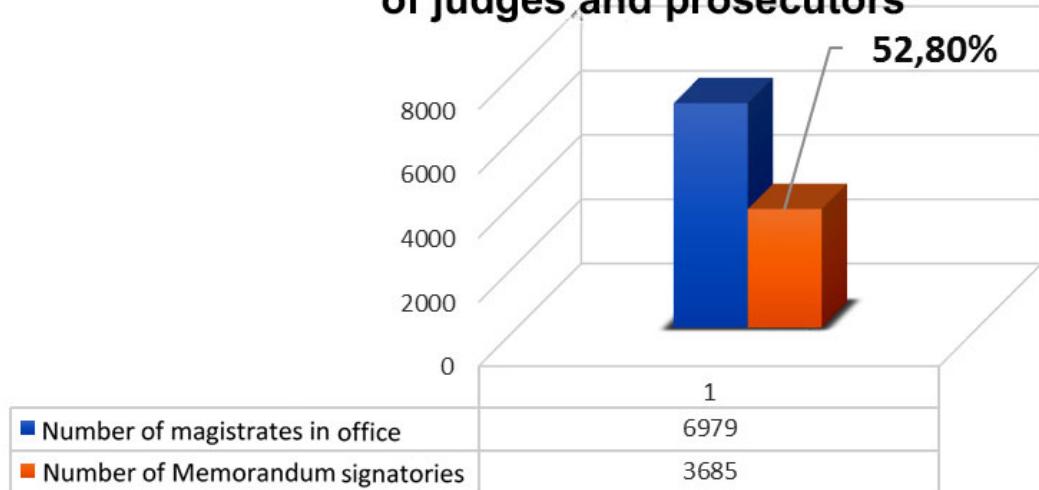

- 2969 provided prosecutor positions + 49 positions provided from the reserve fund, out of which 2514 positions of prosecutors and 30 posts from the reserve fund are currently occupied;

Consequently, according to the situation published by the Human Resources Division of the Superior Council of Magistracy, the total number of positions occupied in the Romanian magistracy on October 1st, 2017 was 7025 (judges and prosecutors, including the High Court of Cassation and Justice). 46 magistrates (25 judges and 21 prosecutors) out of these numbers were subsequently retired, according to the decrees published in the Official Gazette of Romania, Part I, no. 782 / 03.10.2017, respectively in the Official Gazette of Romania, Part I, no. 798 / 09.10.2017, the number of currently occupied positions being 6979, within the courts and prosecutors' offices in Romania.

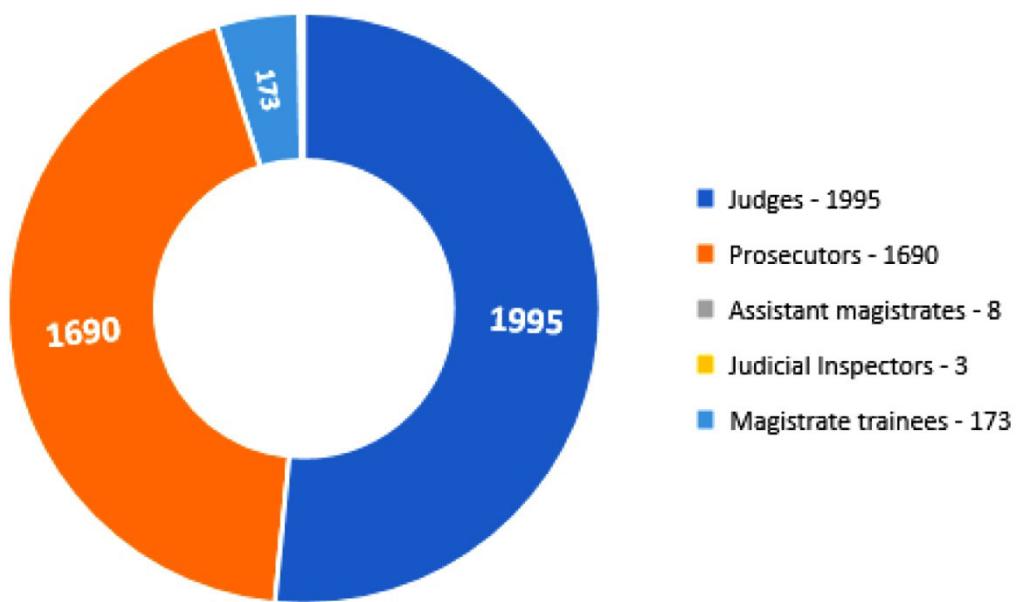

In the light of the above mentioned considerations, the unwavering will of the majority of magistrates, which, according to the signatories of the Memorandum, the Government of Romania (to which the Minister of Justice is part of) cannot be disregard in a Member State of the European Union, converges in the sense of removing any doubts about a possible deviation of these important legislative drafts to the detriment of the magistracy, the Ministry of Justice failing to develop an effective dialogue with the magistrates, the Superior Council of Magistracy, the professional associations of judges and prosecutors, in order to improve the legislative framework, after carrying out the necessary impact studies and after presenting serious and credible motives regarding the proposed amendments, in order to modernize justice, in accordance with the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism.

The initiators of the memo also point out that further adhesions to the Memorandum are still being received.

Civil society representatives stage thank-you flashmob for magistrates opposing judicial overhaul laws

Civil society representatives gathered on Wednesday in front of the Bucharest Tribunal to thank the 3,500 magistrates who signed the memorandum to Premier Mihai Tudose and Justice Minister Tudorel Toader, asking them to withdraw the bill on the amendment of the Justice package.

Several delegates lined on the steps in front of the Bucharest Tribunal, each carrying a letter or a sign to display the message "THANK YOU 3,500+". Former Health Minister Vlad Voiculescu was among the participants.

The action is supported by 32 civic organizations and is staged in front of the Bucharest, Cluj-Napoca, Iasi, Galati, Timisoara, Craiova, Constanta, Brasov, Sibiu and Oradea tribunals.

"We consider that the move by the Romanian Judges Forum, which has the support of over 3,500 magistrates, is a public alarm signal on the danger of political subordination of justice and halting the fight against corruption and organized crime. We appreciate your attachment to the idea of free justice, without political intrusion and the promotion of the European values of freedom and rule of law. We appreciate your efforts to form common front against political attacks on independent justice. We appreciate your courage to candidly put the finger on the sore spot and express the point of view of those who matter most in the justice enforcement process: the practitioners. We appreciate the consciousness you prove as an integral part of the Romanian society. So thank you for rejecting these legislative proposals with hard to anticipate consequences for democracy and which will foreseeably produce serious imbalances for the judiciary and the separation of powers. Thank you for highlighting the risk of a flagrant violation of Romania's commitments under the European Commission's Co-operation and Verification Mechanism," reads a release from the civic organizations.

Approximately 3,500 magistrates signed the memorandum to Prime Minister Mihai Tudose and Justice Minister Tudorel Toader, demanding the withdrawal of the bill amending the laws of Justice.

The memorandum argues that Justice Minister Toader put the bill forward without impact studies and without holding prior consultations on essential legislative aspects to ensure decisional transparency for the magistrates and the civil society. VeDem Just : 100 civic organizations ask the Romanian Government to abandon the bill initiated by the Ministry of Justice to amend the laws on justice

Press release:

Update, 26th oct, 09:18 PM: Another 4 organisations signed the letter. Now, the final number is 100.

Today, October 17, 2017, 65 civic organizations ask the Romanian Government to abandon the bill initiated by the Ministry of Justice to amend the laws on justice. Signatories are non-governmental organizations, civic groups, student associations in Romania and abroad. Among them, Initiativa Romania, Institutul pentru Politici Publice, Grupul pentru Dialog Social, Asociatia ProDemocratia, Freedom House, Funky Citizens, VeDem Just, Societatea Timisoara si Platforma Romania 100.

Given that the Superior Council of Magistracy has reacted negatively to this bill, and almost 4,000 magistrates, nominally, have asked for the project to be withdrawn, we believe that it is necessary to listen to the opinion of the specialists and to organize genuine debates on aspects should be promoted. Any changes are intended, they must lead to a strengthening of the independence of the judiciary and the further fight against corruption on the coordinates of the reform that started in 2004-2005.

To the Government of Romania
Prime Minister Mihai Tudose,

To the Minister of Justice,
Professor Tudorel Toader, PhD,

Dear Prime Minister,
Dear Minister of Justice,

We noted the intention of the Ministry of Justice, expressed on August 23, 2017, to propose to the Romanian Government a draft law amending the law package on justice - Law no. 303/2004 on the status of judges and prosecutors, Law no. 304/2004 on judicial organization and Law no. 317/2004 on the Superior Council of Magistracy.

We also took note of the amendments proposed by the Ministry of Justice in the draft currently under consideration. In view of its content, this request, made pursuant to the Government Ordinance no. 27/2002 on the regulation of the petitions settlement activity, the signatory organizations from Romania and the Diaspora strongly urge you to withdraw the draft law and to resume the debates on ways to make the judicial system more efficient.

The Romanian justice system was reformed in the years 2004-2005, as a condition for Romania's accession to the European Union. This is when the independence of the judiciary was strengthened and the administrative and functional separation of the Ministry of Justice from the Superior Council of Magistracy (SCM) was enacted. Since then, the SCM has taken over the management of the magistrates' career, including the powers of control over their activity and the management of the courts and prosecutor's offices, and at that time the National Anticorruption Directorate was established. Due to these essential changes, leading to magistrates having a secure career, free from political interference, cases have been solved involving persons with important positions in Romania, thus revealing the systemic corruption within the public institutions and authorities.

Subsequently, the confidence of Romanian citizens in the justice system has steadily increased over the last 10 years. Soon, Romania has become a regional and European model for fighting corruption at the level of judicial institutions. In fact, this positive track record has been highlighted by the European Commission in the reports of the Cooperation and Verification Mechanism, especially over the last three years. As a result, we are aware that there is now no need for a new judicial reform, but for an incremental improvement of the organization of the justice system in order to make it more efficient. However, such adjustments must be discussed in substantive terms with magistrates and civil society. Romanian society is the ultimate recipient of the act of justice.

In relation to the project posted on the website of the Ministry of Justice, the signatory organizations can not agree with provisions allowing the magistrates to be controlled by bodies placed under political authority, strengthening the Minister's position in the political decision on the career of top prosecutors at the Public Ministry, the National Anti-corruption Directorate and the Directorate for Investigating Organised Crime and Terrorism, leading to the creation of distinct structures for the prosecution of magistrates only, or precluding the young people from starting a career in the judiciary. Romania needs institutional stability of its judicial system. However, we believe that the proposed changes actually express the intentions of the Ministry of Justice to re-create levers of control over the judiciary, which brings about major vulnerabilities to the whole project.

Given that the Superior Council of Magistracy has reacted negatively to this draft law and nearly 4,000 magistrates have nominally called for the project to be withdrawn, we believe that it is imperative that the Government listen to the expert opinions and that substantive debates be held on the issues to be promoted.

Moreover, considering the high interest shown by the civil society in the functioning of the judiciary, we believe that, prior of any structural change, extensive discussions are needed in particular with organizations active in the areas of judicial reform and human rights. Any intended changes must lead to strengthening the independence of the judiciary and to a continuation of the fight against corruption, on the lines of the reform started in 2004-2005.

OPINION

On the draft Law for amending and supplementing the Law no.303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors, of Law 304/2004 on judicial organisation and of Law 317/2004 on Superior Council of Magistracy

Upon examination of the draft Law on amending and supplementing the Law no.303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors, of Law 304/2004 on judicial organisation and of Law 317/2004 on Superior Council of Magistracy, sent for opinion by the Ministry of Justice by note no. 88.929 of 30.08.2017;

SUPERIOR COUNCIL OF MAGISTRACY

Pursuant to provisions of art.38 paragraph (3) of Law 317/2004 on Superior Council of Magistracy, republished, as further amended;

On the grounds of Decision 974 of 28 September 2017 of the Plenum of Superior Council of Magistracy;

Adopts a negative opinion on the draft Law on amending and supplementing the Law no.303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors, of Law 304/2004 on judicial organisation and of Law 317/2004 on Superior Council of Magistracy, for the following reasons:

I. The draft law sent for endorsement disregards, on essential aspects, the guarantees fundamental for the functioning of the judiciary, in a manner that is infringing the constitutional provisions.

• Relevant to this end are the regulations comprised within the draft law that provide for the reorganisation of Judicial Inspection, by taking this institution and inserting it within the Ministry of Justice.

Considering the fundamental principle of separations of powers, but also the constitutional guarantees of independence acknowledged for the judicial authority, it results that the activity carried out by courts, within the constitutional role of delivering justice, cannot be subject of any forms of verification and control by structures which belong to the executive authority.

Pursuant to the principles set at a constitutional level, it is necessary to regulate by the special law certain proper mechanisms for verification and control of the activity carried out by judicial authority.

Because those mechanisms of verification and control are set within the powers of the Judicial Inspection, it is necessary for that institution to have sufficient guarantees of independence, both on a functional level, but also on an organizational level, in order to exclude any implication of political influence.

As it is also mentioned in the Report of 25th January 2017 from the Commission to the European Parliament and the Council on progress in Romanian under the Co-operation and Verification Mechanism, a major reform that took place in 2012 reinforced the Judicial Inspection as an independent and professional institution. That reform allowed the Judicial Inspection to become more effective and to have an increased authority, a situation that was further confirmed by the results reported in 2016.

The Plenum considered that Judicial Inspection should carry on as a structure with legal personality within Superior Council of Magistracy Superior (the constitutional guarantor of the independence of justice), thus the proposal lodged by the Ministry of Justice violates the constitutional provisions on the independence of justice and separations of powers within a state.

The reorganisation of Judicial Inspection as a structure within the Ministry of Justice will set the impression of a political subordination, a situation which involves the infringement of the constitutional principle on the separation of powers.

There is no sustainable reasoning which could substantiate the idea that Judicial Inspection does not fulfil its duties because it is organized and functions within Superior Council of Magistracy. On the contrary, the annual reports of activity prove that fulfilment of duties by Judicial Inspection was not mitigated or annihilated as a consequence of this kind of organisation.

Finally, the opinion that in some European states the Judicial Inspection is organized within the Ministry of Justice cannot be used, mutatis mutandis, as a reasoning to be used for this end, without taking into account the specificity of the Romanian judiciary or the grounds that initially determined the organization of the Judicial Inspection as a structure within Superior Council of Magistracy.

For this analysis are also relevant the aspects mentioned in the Opinion no.18 (2015) "The position of the judiciary and its relation with the other powers of state in a modern democracy" - issued by Consultative Council of European Judges, which mentions that Problems on the interaction between the executive and the judiciary can occur in those states in which the Ministry of Justice or other ministries or agencies, e.g. those having a power of audit and/or financial control, have the power to order inspections at courts. The right of other powers of the state to be informed of or to investigate the system of justice should in all cases be exercised having regard to the limits imposed by judicial independence.

Also, pursuant to the constant case law of the European Court of Human Rights, in order to guarantee a full independence of the judiciary, as a corollary of the guaranteed right to a fair trial, from the outlook of article 6 of the Convention, it is necessary to have a judiciary which is independent to the Executive, but also to the Parliament. From this perspective, the independence of judiciary may be affected by the pressure carried out by the executive power (ECHR judgment of 25.07.2002, in Sovtransavto v. Ukraine).

Disciplinary liability of magistrates is a part of the activity of Judicial Inspection, an institution which, through the role provided for in the mechanism of the institutions that are parts of the judiciary, must be absolutely independent from the political factor.

Only this type of statute, that allows a clear delimitation from any interference of the political factor, can provide the guarantees for observing the independence of the magistrate and of the judiciary as a whole, during the activity carried out by Judicial Inspection.

In any contrary situation, the subordination of Judicial Inspection to a political body, such as the Ministry of Justice, will create the reasonable doubt that the activity of checking and evaluating the magistrate may be influenced at any given moment by the political power, in order to alter the impartiality and independence of the magistrate in the process of adopting a decision.

•The proposal to repeal article 136 of Law 304/2004 on judicial organization, which will result in preserving the management of the budget of courts by the Ministry of Justice, is contrary to the constitutional principle on the independence of justice.

Thus, financial independence is an essential part of the concept of constitutional independence of justice, which cannot be granted to the benevolence of a separate power, namely the executive power.

In its Decision 262/2016, the Constitutional Court mentioned that independence of justice – both the institutional component and the independence of a judge – the individual component, implies the existence of numerous aspects, such as (among others) the lack of interference from other state powers in the judicial process and the existence of sufficient financial funds for carrying out and administering the delivery of justice. It was proved beyond any doubt that the principle of the independence of justice implies a series of guarantees, such as (among others) financial guarantees, administrative independence of magistrates, but also the independence of judicial power from the other state powers.

According to one of the fundamental principles on the independence of justice adopted by the Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders „it is the duty of each Member State to provide adequate resources to enable the judiciary to perform its functions properly.”

Also, the Consultative Council of European Judges mentions, within Opinion no.2 (2001) on the funding and management of courts with reference to the efficiency of the judiciary and to article 6 of the European Convention, that „although the funding of courts is part of the State budget presented to Parliament by the Ministry of Finances, such funding should not be subject to political fluctuations. Although the level of funding a country can afford for its courts is a political decision, care must always be taken, in a system based on the separation of powers, to ensure that neither the executive nor the legislative authorities are able to exert any pressure on the judiciary when setting its budget. Decisions on the allocation of funds to the courts must be taken with the strictest respect for judicial independence...

Furthermore, in the light of the same opinion, the Consultative Council of European Judges mentions that „States should reconsider existing arrangements for the funding and management of courts in the light of this opinion. The CCJE in particular further draws attention to the need to allocate sufficient resources to courts to enable them to function in accordance with the standards laid down in Article 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights”

According to those conditions, the transfer of the management of courts' budget from the Ministry of Justice to the High Court of Cassation and Justice – as stated by article 136 of Law 304/2004, which is due to be repealed by the new provisions of the analysed draft law – represents a measure for ensuring the observance of the constitutional principle on the independence of justice – an essential component of the rule of law.

- The provisions of the draft law on the financial liability of magistrates for judicial errors are also contrary to the provisions of the fundamental law.

Thus, the draft law proposes, among other issues, the amendment of the provisions of paragraph (7) article 96 of Law 303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors that currently provides for the possibility of state to act with a motion for damages against the judge or prosecutor who with bad faith or gross negligence committed the judicial error that caused prejudices.

According to the draft put forward by the Ministry of Justice, the legal provisions would state in an imperative manner that, after covering the damages, the state shall act with a motion for damages against the judge or prosecutor who caused the judicial error that resulted in prejudices.

But, article 52 of the republished Romanian Constitution regulates the „Right of a person aggrieved by a public authority”, as follows, at article (3): „The State shall bear patrimony liability for any prejudice caused as a result of judicial errors. The State liability shall be assessed according to the law and shall not eliminate the liability of the magistrates having exercised their mandate with bad faith or gross negligence.”

Pursuant to the constitutional regulation in force, the state has only the possibility to lodge an action for recovery, thus the solution adopted by the draft law - which by ignoring the constitutional norm, imposes on the state the obligation to lodge an action for recovery against the magistrate – arises problems of constitutionality.

Relevant to this end are the aspects taken into account by the Constitutional Court in Decision 80 of 16 February 2014 on the draft law for revising the Constitution of Romania (paragraphs par. 174-176), when the Court analysed the amendment proposed for article 52 paragraph (3) of the Constitution, that provided for inserting a new sentence in this text, namely „the state shall use its right of recourse, pursuant to law”:

„Even though the term proposed to be inserted seems to aim at defining the bearer of the right for recourse in case of damages caused by any judicial error that was the result of exerting the function with bad faith or gross negligence, actually, due to its wording, it forces the state to use its right to recourse. The imperative nature of the term proposed to be inserted in the body of article 52 paragraph (3) of the Constitution may lead to unacceptable situations, when the state shall use automatically the action for recovery in any situation in which the state covers the damage caused by a judicial error, without being able to hold the right to appraise if the magistrate acted with bad faith or gross negligence, thus requesting the intervention of the court in an automated manner. For those reasons, the content of the proposed norm could take into account the possibility of the state to use its right of recourse, pursuant to law.

Thus, the constitutional text cannot compel the state to lodge, in all cases, actions for recovery, but must allow the state to decide on using this recourse, with the final consequence of having a court judging on such an action for recovery, if the motion was put forward".

For those reasons, with unanimity, the Court recommended to reformulate the amendment proposed for paragraph (3) of article 52 of the Constitution.

Based on these considerations of the Constitutional Court, it is highlighted that in the current Romanian constitutional system it is enshrined only the possibility of the state to act with a recourse against the magistrate and not an obligation to this end. Furthermore, if the Constitutional Court mentioned that it would not be justified to amend the Fundamental Law itself to the end envisaged by the Ministry of Justice, it is obvious that it would not be possible to amend the infra-constitutional legislation.

Similar draft laws were previously analysed by Superior Council of Magistracy and those proposals also received negative opinions.

To this end, it is useful to mention Decisions adopted by the Plenum of Superior Council of Magistracy - no.243/2010, no.891/2016 and no.1381/2016 expressing negative opinions on the legislative proposals for amending and supplementing Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutors, that provided for amending paragraph (7) of article 96 of Law 303/2004, in order to insert an obligation for the state to act with recourse against a judge or a prosecutor.

Also, by Decision no. 330 of 7 April 2015, the Plenum of Superior Council of Magistracy issued a negative opinion on another legislative proposal for amending article 96 of Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutor, which comprised similar provisions.

Within the opinion that is an annex to the abovementioned decision it was stated that the financial liability of magistrates – in the situation when the state is liable for the damages caused by judicial errors – was previously analysed by the Council during the examination of the amendments issued within the debates of the sessions held by the Joint Commission of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate for elaboration of a legislative proposal on revising the Romanian Constitution.

With this occasion, Superior Council of Magistracy stated the current provisions of article 52 paragraph 3 of the Constitution should not be amended, taking into account the following:

Currently, abovementioned constitutional provisions set an objective liability of the Romanian state for the prejudices caused through judicial errors. As results from the wording of those constitutional provisions, the state has only the possibility and not the obligation to lodge an action for recovery for the prejudices caused by judicial errors.

Superior Council of Magistracy considered that using the right to use the action for recovery should still be the option of the holder of the right to action – the state and not to become an obligation, thus being the general rule of law as regards the use of rights by their holders.

Thus, as regards the state, the system of objective liability is a proper one, the state – as an administrator of the activity of the judiciary, at the legislative, operational and financial level – being responsible for covering the damages caused by a judicial error done through bad faith or gross negligence by a prosecutor or a judge.

Instead, any liability of a person (criminal or civil), including a magistrate, must originate in a guilt, in this case being the guilt in fulfilling the professional duties by the magistrate.

More precisely, the financial liability of a judge or a prosecutor cannot be enforced in an objective manner (similar to the way the state is liable), but only in a subjective manner, namely for the situation when the magistrate perpetrates a severe personal fact, committed with the intention to make a damage, or for the situation when the magistrate, with gross negligence has done a judicial error determinant for the appearance of a damage.

The judicial errors involves, beyond the situations expressly mentioned in the Criminal Procedure Code (the situation when a definitively convicted person is subsequently acquitted or when the freedom of a person was unlawfully restrained) and in other situations that are not precisely defined by the doctrine or case law.

The judicial error refers, mainly, to a solution on the substance of the case that does not correspond to a legal reality subsequently determined. This error is not due solely, and sometimes not in part, to the activity of the judge or of the prosecutor.

Some of the recently noticed judicial errors happened because, at the time of the trial and conviction for a certain, a series of evidences were not available (e.g. DNA expertise) or because in the case were considered statements that were not true or new facts and circumstances were uncovered, those being unknown to the court at the moment of delivering the final judgment.

Besides, the nature of using extraordinary appeals, able to quash a final judgement, is given by the situation of the court which judged the first trial and did not know of new evidence or facts, including those which are crime related and pertinent to the cause, so that the initial solution was according to the factual situation determined on the grounds of a series of evidence known at that given moment.

In some cases of judicial error, taking into account the possible and used evidence, the error is not due only to the magistrate, but it would be a joint one, until new facts are uncovered. Beyond the limits of the investigation techniques at a certain date, as new scientific discoveries may invalidate previous conclusions, it should not be neglected the human factor that has an important percentage in the entire set of evidence, both in criminal and civil cases.

Superior Council of Magistracy also considered one of the fundamental principles, established by the Consultative Council of European Judges in the document Magna Carta of Judges (Fundamental Principles), according to which: „The remedy for judicial errors should lie in an appropriate system of appeals. Any remedy for other failings in the administration of justice lies only against the state.”

Also to this end, it was considered that in Opinion nr.3 of the Consultative Council of European Judges (CCJE) Consultative Council of European Judges (CCJE) to the attention of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe on the principles and rules governing judges' professional conduct, in particular ethics, incompatible behaviour and impartiality, it is mentioned:

„As a general principle, judges personally should enjoy absolute freedom from liability in respect of claims made directly against them relating to their exercise in good faith of their functions. Judicial errors, whether in respect of jurisdiction or procedure, in ascertaining or applying the law or in evaluating evidence, should be dealt with by an appeal; other judicial failings which cannot be rectified in this way

(including e.g. excessive delay) should, at most, lead to a claim by the dissatisfied litigant against the State.”

The CCJE’s conclusion is „that it is not appropriate for a judge to be exposed, in respect of the purported exercise of judicial functions, to any personal liability, even by way of reimbursement of the state, except in a case of wilful default”.

II. The draft law proposes improper solutions for aspects that are also essential for the judiciary, having a profound impact on its normal functioning.

- One of the solution proposed by the Ministry of Justice through the draft normative act envisages the conditions for access to magistracy.

Thus, the draft law proposes the supplementation of the provisions of article 14 paragraph (2) of Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutors, that regulates the conditions for admittance into National Institute of Magistracy, with two new letters f) and g) that set a minimum age of 30 years old and a minimum seniority of 5 years into one of the legal professions regulated by law.

This proposal is supplemented with that on annulment of paragraphs (1) - (4) and (11) - (14) of articles, that currently regulates the competition for admission into National Institute of Magistracy, thus making the admittance into the National Institute of Magistracy the sole method for becoming judge or prosecutor.

The amendments proposed by the draft law will reduce, without doubt, the pool for selecting the candidates, with the subsequent consequence of decreasing, on medium term, the professional quality of magistrates.

The current system allows the access into magistracy of those law graduates who are best trained. The proposed system will force those to ask for admittance into other legal professions, especially in liberal professions. It is hard to believe that those people, after the age of 30 and after a professional experience of a minimum 5 years, if they become adapted to that profession and gained good results and an encouraging income will quit a developing career, with real premisses of growth, in order to start another career in magistracy.

Any shortcoming arising from the young age and from the lack of experience of the magistrates which are at the beginning of the profession could be corrected by adopting other measures, such as increasing the term of the probationary period, increasing the term of professional training within the National Institute of Magistracy, setting up collegial panels comprising probationary judges and definitive judges or organising the system of prosecutors’ offices in order to ensure the guidance of probationary prosecutors.

On the other hand, invoking the lack of experience of those who are currently admitted to the National Institute of Magistracy, without an age limitation, is even more unjustified, because according to article 37 of the Constitution, the citizens who are at least 23 years old in the day of the elections have the right to be elected for the Chamber of Deputies or for the bodies of the local public administration.

Not least, the reference to „legal professions regulated by law” does not observe the predictability requirements, as the law does not mention those professions.

- Also, the improper solutions proposed by the draft law for the promotion of judges and prosecutors into regular positions are arguable.

a) Even if the proposals of Superior Council of Magistracy pertaining to the conditions of seniority for promotion were taken into account, the competition procedure proposed by the Ministry of Justice is not sustainable in practice, because it will involve the evaluation of papers drafted by all candidates who passed the written exam and that aspect will be difficult to be enforced.

To this end it must be mentioned that at the exam for promotion into judge at High Court of Cassation and Justice, organized during 3 January – 31 May 2017, the evaluation of the documents drafted by candidates took place during 8 February – 9 May 2017, for a number of 53 candidates.

By comparison, at the contest for promotion into regular position of judges and prosecutors, organized in 2016, applied 1360 judges and 791 prosecutors (representing a number of candidates of 40 times higher), a figure that gives a real image on the enormous period of time necessary to organize the competition according to the conditions proposed by the Ministry of Justice, that will also involve human and logistical resources which are impossible to be provided by Superior Council of Magistracy.

In contrast, the system proposed by the Council the exam for obtaining the professional level consists of only one written test and the other test for evaluating the activity and conduct of candidates will be carried out only by those considerable fewer candidates, who have gained the professional level and would like to effectively promote.

b) As regards the seniority required for promotion and taking into account the temporal application of the envisaged provisions, the proposals of the Ministry of Justice do not comprise according transitory provisions, that would prevent the violation of the constitutional principle of non-retroactivity of law, because it is obvious that the new law cannot alter the fulfilled terms of seniority that are acknowledged by the law in force.

[The absence of transitional provisions would cause absurd situations when judges or prosecutors who already gained the professional level of tribunal, according to the legal provisions in force, would lack not only the required seniority for promotion to the court of appeal, but also the required seniority for tribunal.]

According to the same reasoning, a judge or a prosecutor who previously participated at a competition for promotion to court of appeal, without passing the exam, would be in a situation when, according to the new law, he or she would not fulfil the conditions for participating at the competition, a circumstance that does not observe the natural logic of the regulation and it is also arguable from the perspective of the non-retroactivity of law principle.

c) The solution envisaged by the draft law on remuneration of judges and prosecutors who promote by gaining a higher professional rank but without functioning effectively in higher court or prosecutor's office, violates the principle of equality before the law, because it applies a different treatment, with no objective and reasonable grounds, to the category of magistrates, as compared to other professional categories for which the promotion into positions, steps and levels also brings a corresponding increase of the salary.

This kind of measure represents a discriminatory solution, because for the entire budgetary system it is provided the system of promotion by levels and ranks or by function and rank, that has an impact on the remuneration; in all those cases, reaching a superior rank does not compel the person involved to change the workplace and does not condition the payment of the sum corresponding to the rank to such a change. Also, in the military system, the gaining of a superior rank does not imply the military will carry out other tasks or that will be moved to another position, but it only contributes to the reinforcement of the possibility to be promoted into the military hierarchy. Also, in the situation of the occupational class „Diplomacy”, the diplomatic rank is paid irrespective of function.

This measure represents an interference in the statute of magistrate, thus being unconstitutional, because the incomes of the magistrate are included in the notion of the statute of magistrate that was specifically devised to guarantee the independence. Furthermore, no reasoning was provided for such measure, but even if a reasoning it would be found, the measure does not observe a level of constitutional or conventional proportionality.

Not least, the Plenum of Superior Council of Magistracy highlights that currently, according to the legal provisions on remuneration that were recently passed (Framework-Law no. 153/2017 on remuneration of personnel paid from public funds), the remuneration of judges and prosecutors is done according to the gained professional rank and not according to the court or prosecutor's office where the magistrate functions.

Also, the remuneration of judges and prosecutors is not part of the scope of Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutors.

- The draft law is arguable also from the perspective of the conception it promotes on the enforcement of the authority of the Minister of Justice on prosecutors, this situation leading to a possible interference of political power into the activity of prosecutor's offices.

a) procedure for appointment into leadership positions for Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice, National Anti-Corruption Directorate and Directorate for Investigating Organised Crime and Terrorism

As it was mentioned in the Report of 25th January 2017 from the Commission to the European Parliament and the Council on progress in Romanian under the Co-operation and Verification Mechanism, as regards the appointment procedure into the highest leadership positions from the hierarchy of the Public Ministry it is necessary to ensure the proper guarantees of transparency, control and balance, even for cases when the final decision is adopted at a political level. But the proposal put forward by the draft law is only creating an imbalance within the procedure of appointment.

Thus, if a proposal is made by the Minister of Justice, Superior Council of Magistracy does not have a real liberty to choose and also, it can decline only once the proposal made by the minister for appointment of a person into one of these leadership positions. Thus, the proposed procedure is in fact granting a decisive power to the Minister of Justice, consequently to the executive power and the role of Superior Council of Magistracy is only formal.

The current procedure of appointment/revocation in and from leadership positions of the Public Ministry it was the one that generated the premisses for a real criminal justice in Romania, due to a tripartite mechanism that provides checks and balances: the Minister of Justice (a representative of executive power), the President of Romania (directly elected by citizens), Superior Council of Magistracy, comprising representatives of magistrates and civil society. Improving the current procedure cannot be done by increasing the decisive role of the Minister of Justice and by excluding the President of Romania from this procedure, but on the contrary, as it was proposed by Superior Council of Magistracy in 2017, by limiting the role of the Minister of Justice in this procedure and granting a determinant role to Superior Council of Magistracy, as the guarantor of the independence of justice.

The procedure for appointment into leadership position of the Public Ministry must be transparent and independent in relation to the political factor and it would be desirable to grant a determinant influence to the opinion of the professional body, namely to have proposals that are put forward by Superior Council of Magistracy.

The regulation in force, but also the proposal made by the Council, are also grounded on the provisions of article 94 of the republished Romanian Constitution, according to which the President of Romania appoints into public positions, pursuant to law, thus the proposal is also made taking into account this constitutional power.

At the same time, it should be highlighted that the draft law unjustly extends the involvement of the Minister of Justice for the other leadership positions of Prosecutors` Office attached to High Court of Cassation and Justice, National Anti-Corruption Directorate and Directorate for Investigation of Organised Crime and Terrorism that are provided for by article 55 of Law 303/2004. In other words, according to the vision of the draft law, the influence of the Minister of Justice is decisive for all the leadership positions of Prosecutor`s Office attached to High Court of Cassation and Justice and of the specialized prosecutor`s offices, including the territorial structure of those, namely for all situations the proposals for appointment shall be made by the Minister of Justice.

The proposal has no objective reasoning and for comparison, de lege lata, the appointment into these positions is done by Superior Council of Magistracy, at the proposal of the Prosecutor General of the Prosecutor`s Office attached to High Court of Cassation and Justice, or as the case may be, of the Chief Prosecutor of the specialized structure.

b) Strengthening this kind of a dominant position held by the Minister of Justice by the mechanism proposed for appointment of chief prosecutors also makes unacceptable the proposal to quash, by the superior hierarchical prosecutor, the ungrounded solutions, because, jointly these proposals devise the premisses of an appearance of political control on prosecutor`s offices and create the possibility for an interference of the Minister of Justice into criminal investigation, the minister functioning in a political government.

- Splitting the decision on the career of judges and prosecutors between the two Sections of the Council, even though is the expression of a desire firmly voiced by the Section for judges, is done in an unsystematised manner, comprising incomplete solutions, that may generate difficulties of interpretation.

From this perspective are relevant the provisions of the draft law which stipulate that secondment and transfer are done according to the opinion expressed by the Section for Judges, respectively for prosecutors, but without mentioning if the adoption of these measures are done by the Sections or by the Plenum of the Council.

Likewise, according to the draft, within the procedure for promotion to High Court of Cassation and Justice, during the test interview to be carried out with the Section for Judges it is mentioned the possibility for a psychologist to attend, the latter specialist being appointed by the Plenum and not by the Section for judges.

In an inconsistent approach to the idea of splitting careers, the draft law provides for the power of the Plenum, and not for that of the corresponding Sections, to decide on: approving the training curricula for the auditors of justice, defending independence, impartiality or professional reputation of a judge or prosecutor, approving the measures for supplementing or reducing the number of positions for courts and prosecutor's offices, organizing the capacity exam, of the competition for appointment of judges and prosecutors into leadership positions and of the competition for promotion of judges and prosecutors into regular positions.

At the same time, in an unjustified manner, the draft law maintains the authority of the Superior Council of Magistracy Plenum to solve the appeals lodge by judges and prosecutors against the decisions passed by the Sections of the Council, excepting those on disciplinary matters, that leads to annihilation of splitting the decision on career at the level of Sections. In the same context, it is also arguable the preservation of the provision on the possibility to appeal at the High Court of Cassation and Justice only of the decisions passed by the Plenum on career of magistrates.

Also, even though it takes from the authority of the Plenum the competence for approving the Regulation of internal order of courts, the draft law neglects to provide that power to the Section for judges.

III. Among other proposed solutions, the draft law proves a tendency of obvious regress, both related to the regulations in force, but also to the previous form of the draft law for amending and supplementing the „laws of justice”, that put forward by the Ministry of Justice, at the end of 2016

- The draft law proposes to repeal the provisions of paragraph (3) article 83 of Law 303/2004 on the statute of judges and prosecutors, namely to eliminate the possibility of a magistrate to be reinstated into position after retirement, because, as it arises from the reasoning, it is intended to prevent cumulating the pension with the salary for the activity of magistrate.

Pursuant to the constant case law of the Superior Council of Magistracy Plenum, the procedure of reinstatement arises as an exceptional method for filling vacant position of the system, that can be used only for the courts or prosecutor's offices that have no real possibilities to fill in vacant positions through use of other means.

But, in the abovementioned context, the Plenum appraises that this proposal eliminates the possibility to fill in certain positions, in special situations. Furthermore, the other proposals to amend the conditions for admittance to National Institute of Magistracy and the abolition of the competition for admittance into magistracy are problematic in the perspective of ensuring the necessary human resources.

If the only reason for such a proposal is of financial nature, in order to prevent the cumulation of the pension with the remuneration of magistrate, we consider that other legal solution could be found, but not the abrogation of the mentioned text.

A solution could be one that was previously proposed by Superior Council of Magistracy and forwarded to the Ministry of Justice in 2017, namely a provision that „during reinstatement, the amount of pension shall be reduced with 85%.”

Besides, the number of persons reinstated as magistrates does not sustain such a proposal, because in 2015 and 2016 only one person was reinstated as judge and none as a prosecutor. Also, in 2014, only 3 persons were reinstated as judges and none as a prosecutor.

- The analysed draft law also eliminates a series of provisions on the career of magistrates, without any reasoning and without providing, at least, statistical data that could be taken into account for the appraisal of proposals.

The Plenum mentions, to this end, the proposals to repeal paragraph (1<sup>1</sup>) of article 62 of Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutors, that provides that, by exception, a judge or a prosecutor is not suspended from the office at the moment of arraignment, for an offence which was not intentionally committed and it is evaluated the deed is not prejudicing the dignity of the profession, having also the possibility to apply a provisional interdiction for the magistrate to exert certain attributions until a final judgement is adopted in the case.

Also, it is proposed to repeal paragraph (1<sup>1</sup>) article 65 of Law 303/2004 on statute of judges and prosecutors, pursuant to which, by exception, judges and prosecutors may remain in office if the conviction or the adjournment of the enforcement of penalty was adopted for the crime provided for by article 196 paragraphs (2) - (4) of Criminal Code, the continued employment being decided by Superior Council of Magistracy if it considers the crime does not affects the dignity of profession.

As a first remark, it should be noticed that none of these proposals are accompanied by reasons that would substantiate their existence, in spite of the compelling rules set by the norms of legislative technique.

Thus, according to article 6 of Law 24/2000, the solutions inserted in a normative act must be solidly reasoned, so that in grounding a new regulation it is necessary to start from current and future social goals, but also from the shortcomings of the legislation in force.

A reasoning for those proposals would have been even more necessary as the legal provisions that are proposed to be repealed entered into force recently, more precisely by Law 255/2013 for enforcement of Law 135/2010 on Code of criminal procedure and on amending and supplementing certain normative acts that comprise criminal procedural provisions, so that the author of the draft law should have mentioned the grounds for a new legislative amendment that would generate a return to the previous situation.

Neither courts and prosecutor's offices nor the professional association sustained these proposals, arguing that elimination of the possibility of continued employment for magistrates is absolutely ungrounded, if the conviction or the adjournment of the enforcement of penalty was passed for the offence of causing bodily harm by negligence and if the action of the magistrate was committed by fault, without any relation with the office or with any other element that would cast any doubt on his or her reputation, thus existing the possibility to be just the result of an accident.

Because this proposal represents an infringement of the statute of magistrate, the objective of the measure should be analysed. It is not clear why a magistrate must be expelled from the system for an offence which was not intentionally committed, in all situations, even when the fact has no relation with the profession and does not affect the ethics of the perpetrator. Even if it would be identified a legitimate purpose for this kind of measure, it would not be the sole to allow the achievement of the result, taking into account that even in the current system such an outcome could be achieved. The filter of analysis carried out by Superior Council of Magistracy (which may suspend the magistrate from office or not, or it can adopt the solution of dismissal) is set in order to avoid situations of this kind. Consequently, such a measure is not proportional with its intended goal, because the regime established for the magistrate is extremely severe.

Furthermore, this treatment is profoundly unfair compared to that applicable to other state powers, no such regulations being in force for the members of the Government or the members of the Parliament.

- The draft law sent for an opinion is a regress even compared to a previous form, because it does not comprises certain provisions pertaining to incompatibilities and the possibility of judges and prosecutors to be admitted into other legal professions without an exam.

In this regard, Plenum considers that one of the imperatives imposed on the legislator during the legislative process is to ensure a proper correlation of the legal norm with the concrete reality of social relations that are to be regulated.

Thus, the previous form of the draft law expressly recognized the possibility of judges and prosecutors to carry out a series of activities that, without constituting the elements of another public or private function, are required in order to optimize the collaboration with other institutions of foreign judiciaries, to carry out in a proper manner the activities of the projects with domestic or foreign financing, to the interest of the judiciary and also for a better internal functioning of the activities devised by the institutions for professional training of other legal professions.

Likewise, the previous form of the draft law allowed that judges and prosecutors with a seniority of at least 18 years in these professions and which were released from office for non-imputable reasons to be admitted into profession of lawyer, mediator, notary public or bailiffs, without exam.

Without any justification, these provisions were eliminated from the draft law, this situation also representing a regress compared to the previous project. The regress is even more unnatural, as it is generated by the Ministry of Justice, which should act for the improvement of the statute of judges and prosecutors, including from the perspective of acknowledging, as a result of a long and honest career, the possibility to have an unconditioned access to other legal professions.

IV. The draft law comprises a series of new regulations or that are entirely different from those included in the previous text and that were not subject of the consultation with the judiciary.

Among other proposals that were mentioned before, on the organization and functioning of Judicial Inspection, management of courts' budget, financial liability of judges and prosecutors and appointment into leadership positions at prosecutor's offices, the draft law also contains absolutely new legislative solutions that were not debated at the level of courts and prosecutor's offices and that were put forward without observing the decisional transparency.

To this end it must be mentioned the proposal to regulate, by law, within 6 months since the entering into force of the envisaged law, the organization and functioning, within the Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice, of a specialized directorate for the prosecution of crimes committed by judges and prosecutors.

In the same category fall the legislative solutions setting the conditions for admittance to the National Institute of Magistracy or those on the abrogation of the provisions of article 62 paragraph (1<sup>1</sup>) and of article 65 paragraph (1<sup>1</sup>), that are inserted for the first time in the current draft law.

V. In brief, it is noticed that in some essential aspects the author of the project did not take into account, or it considered in an insignificant or contrary manner, many of the solutions proposed by Superior Council of Magistracy and that arise from the consultation of the judiciary.

Thus, regarding the issue on the incompatibilities of magistrates, the Ministry of Justice did not adopt the proposals envisaging the extension of the area of activities that can be carried out by magistrates.

As regards the procedure for admittance into magistracy through the National Institute of Magistracy, even though an important of the proposals made by Superior Council of Magistracy were adopted, two new conditions are inserted (a minimum age of 30 years old and at least 5 years of activity in legal professions); correlatively, it is proposed to abrogate the direct access procedure into the profession.

The proposals to reduce the duration of courses at National Institute of Magistracy to 1 year and 6 months, to increase the term of the probation to 1 year and 6 months and the proposal to rethink the content of the probation term were not adopted.

The proposals on enshrining the right of judges and prosecutors with a seniority of at least 18 years to become lawyers, mediators, public notaries or bailiffs without exam were not adopted. Also the proposal to appoint without exam former judges and prosecutors who acted in this capacity at least 10 years was not adopted.

As regards the procedure for promotion of judges and prosecutors into regular position, the proposals of the Ministry of Justice are fundamentally different from those of Superior Council of Magistracy, on all aspects.

As regards the procedure of appointment into leadership positions of judges and prosecutor, the proposals related to the appointment into the position of Vice-President of court, of Deputy General Prosecutor of the Prosecutor's Office attached to Court of Appel and of First-Deputy Prosecutor were not adopted. Also, the proposals related to the appointment into the leadership positions of important prosecutor's offices, according to a procedure which stated that appointments shall be done by Superior Council of Magistracy, upon proposal of the Ministry of Justice, were not adopted.

The proposal on the possibility to allocate the positions of probationary judges and prosecutors, supplementary to those provided for in the scheme of personnel of the court or prosecutor's office, was not adopted.

The proposals of Superior Council of Magistracy pertaining to the periodical psychological testing of the magistrates were adopted in an arguable form, because the proposed amendment mentions the mark „unapt” instead of „not recommended” as it was proposed by Superior Council of Magistracy. The reference to the mark „unapt” is totally improper, because it could induce the idea that such an evaluation should enforce the article 65 paragraph (1) letter i) of Law 303/2004, according to which the magistrate is released from office if no longer satisfies the condition to be apt from a psychological view in order to exert the profession. But, in any circumstances, this is not the scope of the procedure put forward by Superior Council of Magistracy, which supports the psychological evaluation of magistrates.

Also, it was eliminated the possibility to reinstate retired magistrates and were issued proposals on the financial liability of judges and prosecutors, which do not observe the fundamental law.

The proposal to amend the composition of the panel that judges the appeals in criminal matter was not adopted.

The proposals on abolition of military courts and reorganization of military prosecutor's offices were not adopted.

It was proposed to abrogate the norm that set the transfer of management of courts budget to the High Court of Cassation and Justice.

The concept pertaining to Judicial Inspection was completely rethought and it was proposed to reorganize it as a structure having legal personality, within the Ministry of Justice.

At the same time, the proposal aimed to ensure a general framework for cooperation of Superior Council of Magistracy with other institutions of foreign judiciaries was not adopted.

The proposal to eliminate the Minister of Justice, the Prosecutor General of Prosecutor's Office attached to the High Court of Cassation and Justice and of the President of the High Court of Cassation and Justice from the category of the holders of disciplinary action was not adopted.

Pursuant to the abovementioned reasons, the Plenum considered that it must adopt a negative opinion on the draft law, due to its severe faults of the normative project.

Even though the project includes, in an irrelevant manner for the whole draft regulation, some of the previous proposals of the Council that were intended to improve the functioning of certain institutions (e.g. proposals on suspension from office of judges and prosecutors, procedure on revocation of the members of Superior Council of Magistracy), the noticed faults of unconstitutionality and the shortcomings in the functioning and organization of the judiciary that could be generated by many of the provisions of the draft law do not allow for a positive opinion, with observations. Such a solution would have been possible if, for the essential points, the draft law submitted for an opinion could improve the activity of the judiciary, but not in the situation when the project represents a regress, compared to the regulations that would be replaced, from the perspective of the constitutional norms, of the independence of justice and of the statute of magistrate.

The negative opinion adopted by the Plenum of the Council does not prevent another action for amending and supplementing the three normative acts, including by considering the solution of separate and swifter regulation of certain aspects arising from decisions of the Constitutional Court (e.g. the procedure on revocation of the elected members of the Council).
